ST. LAWRENCE PLAN PLEDGE IS RENEWED

Hon. R. B. Bennett Says Waterways Project Will Be Carried Out if Conservatives Are Elected

ONTARIO WELCOMES LEADER OF PARTY

Tells Cobourg Audience Policies of Liberals Have Had "Baneful" Result on Canadian Trade

By THOMAS GREEN (Canadian Press Staff Correspondent)

Cobourg, Ont., June 24.—Facing the first audience in the Ontario portion of his Dominion campaign, Hon. R. B. Bennett here tonight, on the shores of Lake Ontario, renewed his pledge to carry out the St. Lawrence waterways project if elected to power.

"For the last nine years," the Conservative leader exclaimed, "the Government has been talking about this scheme. But what have they done? They have done nothing. But they have talked. They had a reference to the Supreme Court of Canada and have taken refuge after refuge in consultation after consultation. Against what? You have the unequivocal promise of our party for the immediate construction of the St. Lawrence waterways."

The Welland Canal was properly being completed. "Why," the Opposition chief proceeded, "were we blessed with this opportunity, why was this great St. Lawrence given to us? Why, but to build this project and reap the benefits. The Government of Mackenzie King has talked platitudes and practices confidences."

PREMIER'S RESPONSIBILITY
The Prime Minister had recently stated, he went on, that Mr. Bennett had not mentioned the St. Lawrence waterways project in the House of Commons. "The responsibility," the Opposition chief declared, "is yours, Mr. King, because under our form of government there is no responsibility for those who sit in Opposition to initiate the expenditure of public money. Also, I did not want to embarrass the Government in any possible negotiations."

Crammed to capacity, the curling rink, in which Mr. Bennett spoke, could not accommodate the crowd. Continued on Page 2, Column 6.

Tornado Strikes Nebraska State; One Man Killed

LEXINGTON, Neb., June 24.—One man was killed and several injured by a tornado which struck southwest of Goldenburg about 6:30 p.m. Meager information said the tornado struck between Gosport and Goldenburg, then lifted across the river and struck again between Gosport and Lexington. It was believed the tornado caused considerable damage to farm property and timber along a thirty-mile strip. Owing to demoralized wire communication, an estimate is not obtainable at this time.

SETTLEMENT AREAS SHOW BETTERMENT

Greater Interest Is Being Manifested in Their Development, Hon. W. Atkinson Says

VACANT HOUSES NOW OCCUPIED

In the matter of land settlement in the areas of agricultural value which have been problems for this province for some time, marked progress is now being made. This is the information gathered from Hon. W. Atkinson, Minister of Agriculture, who has just returned from a two weeks' trip through the Interior.

At Creston the Minister saw a decided change in the situation from what it was when the Government took over affairs. The buildings which had been deserted by the first settlers three years ago, for the most part, were again taken up. There are practically none of the houses now vacant.

The settlers who have gone into the country are showing a disposition to work and to improve their places. The result is that there is an air of prosperity about the valley. Alfalfa crops have been seeded and the clover is doing well. The farmers will take off two crops from the fields, which will give them a good return.

Not far away is the Kootenay Flats area, which is being reclaimed. In that part one of the dykes burst with flooding of a section of the reclaimed lands, but the valley will have some four thousand acres under cultivation. The crops of wheat that are raised from the land there are heavy so that the returns will be gratifying.

In the Sumas reclaimed lands Mr. Atkinson says that all but about one thousand acres of the land has been disposed of. In many cases the new owners are cultivating the lands this year, while in other instances the holdings are under clover.

PILOT KILLED IN AIRPLANE CRASH

WICHITA, Kas., June 24.—L. Schumacher, youthful Palo Alto, Calif., pilot, was killed, and his airplane crashed, when the plane crashed on a farm near Schulte, Kas., twelve miles north of this city, early tonight.

SEATS COLLAPSE INJURING THREE

Panic Threatens in Halifax Arena for Few Minutes at Political Meeting of Premier King

HALIFAX, N.S., June 24.—Three persons sustained minor injuries during the progress of the Liberal rally which was addressed by Premier Mackenzie King here tonight, when a section of seats in the new arena collapsed, precipitating about sixty people a distance of twenty feet to the floor. Those injured were: Mr. Abraham Fry, who suffered chest injuries; Mr. Charles Reid, injuries to his back; and Mrs. Charles Reid, leg.

The collapse occurred when one of the local candidates was speaking, before Mr. King had opened his address. From one of the sections at the side the rink came a sound of splintering wood, and it could be seen that the seats, which are in the nature of high steps, were sagging; then they slowly gave way. For several minutes there was a threat of panic. The large audience rose to its feet, and those in the immediate neighborhood started to rush out.

The chairman of the meeting called for order, a quick-witted usher asked the band to play, the music started, and the meeting went on. The injured were taken to their homes.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 24.—Dr. A. A. Michelson is now in California to find out how fast light travels. Having resigned from the University of Chicago, the noted physicist will stay on the job until he solves the mystery, and this means all Summer and possibly a year or two.

On the Irvine ranch Dr. Michelson has with him Mr. Pearson, research associate of the University of Chicago; Dr. Francis G. Pease, of the Mount Wilson Solar Observatory staff, who co-operated with Mr. Pearson in preparing the optical system for the test, and Mr. Edgar C. Nichols, also of the Mount Wilson staff, who had charge of the engineering and designing of the installation.

The installation embodies five systems in one: the tube itself, together with the optical, mechanical, electrical and air systems, all of which had to be synchronized and made to work by pressing buttons.

A vacuum tube is used because light shimmers in air. Removing the air removes the shimmering and many other difficulties.

DESCRIPTION OF TUBE
The tube is three feet in diameter and one mile long. A corrugated steel pipe consisting of double-ribbed short sections put together in joints, which are sixty feet long. When the air is sucked out of the tube, the atmosphere exerts a collapsing pressure of 2,100 pounds against every square foot of the vacuum tube.

Witchcraft Poisons Help Mass Murder Of Male Villagers

(Copyright, 1930, by The Chicago Daily News Foreign Service.)

VIENNA, Austria, June 24.—The climax is expected this week in the gruesome case of the Borgia-like women in the Hungarian village of Szalnok who murdered their husbands and fathers wholesale by feeding them arsenic obtained in fly paper.

Two of the women in this week's batch of defendants, Laszlo Szabo and Balint Cordas, have been sentenced to death. Mrs. Szabo murdered her father-in-law by poison given her by Balint Cordas, who also furnished poison to the others.

POISON PRICES
Mrs. Cordas testified that she got 14 plus fifty cords of wood as payment in the Szabo case, while in another murder she was content to trade a satisfactory dose of arsenic for 7 and a half a bushel of Indian corn.

Two men also have been sentenced as accomplices. Each got life imprisonment at hard labor.

Nine cases so far have been tried and eleven more will reach verdict this week. Of those already tried three murdered their husbands, two their fathers, and one a brother.

The water supply which has been provided there is working to the advantage of the settlement and the residents are pleased with the outlook.

FORTY-FIVE ARE KILLED

One of Most Serious Prison Mutinies in Indian History Occurs in Rangoon Central Jail

MILITARY POLICE QUELL OUTBREAK

RANGOON, India, June 24.—One of the most serious prison mutinies in recent Indian history occurred here today in the Rangoon Central Jail.

Before the police and warders had subdued the rioters, in two hours of firing, forty-five persons were killed and seventy-one wounded.

The dead included two sentries, two military police, a prison truck driver and forty convicts.

VOLLEY AFTER VOLLEY
The armed forces of the law poured volley after volley into the ranks of the stubbornly resisting prisoners, literally mowing them down. Many of the injured were not expected to survive.

One report attributed the outbreak to indignation among the Indian convicts over findings of the Simon Commission.

Authorities said indications pointed to a well organized plot for a jail delivery.

Some hundred convicts, both Indians and Burmese, working in the jail shops, suddenly attacked and killed two sentries. In an instant Continued on Page 2, Column 3.

BROKERAGE FIRM WILL REORGANIZE

Offices of Solloway, Mills & Co. Will Close Saturday—New Business Coming Into Existence

LOCAL MANAGER AWAITS ACTION

(Canadian Press)

CALGARY, Alta., June 24.—All offices of Solloway, Mills & Co. in Canada will be closed at noon Saturday, it was announced here tonight. Under a new name preparations for carrying on the business are now being made, but no decisions have been announced.

Clients, it was stated, would be allowed Thursday, Friday and up to noon Saturday, to clear their business with the brokerage company.

Nelther I. W. C. Solloway nor Harvey Mills will be associated with the reorganized company.

Dr. D. Warnock, the local manager of the Solloway Mills brokerage office, when interviewed last night with respect to the plans in connection with the Victoria business, said that he had no additional information to that given in the press dispatches. What the plans of the new company would be he could not anticipate.

In Victoria there was a very considerable amount of business carried on, and it appeared to him that there might be every reason to expect that the business would be continued, but he had no advice on this aspect of the situation.

COMMENT BY SOLLOWAY
CALGARY, Alta., June 24.—Isaac W. C. Solloway will personally retire from the brokerage business of which he has been the head, following the verdict of Mr. Justice Ives, in the Supreme Court, when he and Harvey Mills were convicted on four conspiracy counts.

"My plans are somewhat indefinite," said Mr. Solloway today, "but I am retiring completely from business and will devote my attention to some of my other interests in the East. It is quite likely that I will again do some prospecting in Northern Ontario."

"Speaking for myself," he said, "I am through with business. I feel that I am retiring completely from business and will devote my attention to some of my other interests in the East. It is quite likely that I will again do some prospecting in Northern Ontario."

MILLS' FUTURE PLANS
Mr. Mills will devote his attention to the development of flying in Alberta, through the Commercial Airways, Ltd., with which he has been closely associated for some time.

According to present arrangements both Mr. Solloway and Mills will appear in Toronto on Monday next to answer the charges presented by the Attorney General.

SOUTHERN CROSS IS FOGBOUND, CRUISING OFF NEWFOUNDLAND

Captain Kingsford-Smith and Crew of Airplane Traverse Broad Atlantic, But Treacherous Fog Off Cape Race Interrupts Progress of Aviators—Bearings Sought From Wireless Station

Ample Reserve of Gas Carried To Secure Landing in Maritimes

(Undated message Wednesday morning by the Associated Press)

THE trimotored aeroplane Southern Cross, veteran of spaces above the ocean waves, Tuesday night hummed steadily toward the North American continent, her good progress indicating she might reach Roosevelt Field at New York by 10 o'clock (E.S.T.) Wednesday morning. Numerous reports of her progress were received and showed the plane shooting toward its goal as steadily as a railroad train. At 5:30 p.m. (E.S.T.), the plane reported its position as more than 500 miles from Cape Race, Nfld., the first North American land expected to be touched.

In earlier reports the Steamship Pennan sighted the plane in latitude 50.57 north and longitude 20.32 west at 2:30 Greenwich meridian time, a position about 1,000 miles from Cape Race.

At 10 a.m. (E.S.T.), the plane's radio notified the Steamship Ingham the Southern Cross was 990 miles from Cape Race and making a true speed of 100 miles an hour heading west and slightly south.

FLYING BLIND
The Steamship Minnequa talked to the plane at the same time and learned it was flying blind at low altitude in a dense fog.

At that time the plane had completed about the first half of its overwater lap between Ireland and the Newfoundland coast.

A later message sent to England said it had flown through fog about an hour prior to 11:20 a.m. Eastern standard time, but then had ridden into good weather.

THE CREW
The Southern Cross, manned by Captain Charles Kingsford-Smith as commander; Captain J. P. Seal, navigator; Mr. J. W. Stannage, radio operator, and Mr. M. E. Van Dyk, assistant pilot, took off from Fort Marnock, Irish Free State, at 4:27 a.m. Tuesday (10:27 a.m. Monday, Eastern standard time).

The plane's wireless reports indicated that at no place was the going particularly difficult. The start was good; the flyers only complaint being of intense cold at 2,000 feet. The speed indicator stayed around 100 miles an hour most of the time, and increased slightly as the load of fuel was lightened.

READY TO REFUEL
Meanwhile preparations were made in the United States for receiving the flyers. A Curtiss Robin refueling plane, provided by an oil company, went to Portland, Maine, planning to refuel the Southern Cross there or somewhere on the coast if the transatlantic voyager needs gasoline to continue to New York.

COMMENT UPON SIMON INQUIRY INDIAN REPORT

Recommendation for an All-India Federation Not Greeted Enthusiastically by Native Leaders

MOSLEM HEADS ARE CRITICAL

SIMLA, India, June 24.—The second volume of the Simon Commission's report, which recommends an all-India federation composed of the native states and the British provinces, cannot be said to have received an enthusiastic reception from Indian leaders.

The attitude of the Nationalists is, of course, one of utter condemnation, since they have set complete independence as their goal, but the Liberals also have joined the criticism of the two Simon reports.

Moslem leaders who were interviewed today were critical. Zafar Ullah Khan, one of the most prominent Moslem chieftains, approved several features of the report, but criticised the following points:

FOUR POINTS
1. The recommendations providing for the inclusion in provincial ministries of ministers nominated by the Governor is called "absolutely indefensible."

2. The section of the report reserving for all time British control of the army and foreign relations with Indian states is held likely to prove "most disappointing."

3. The proposals regarding the Northwest Frontier Province are "likely to intensify the Moslem feeling of disenfranchisement over the report."

4. The proposal that women should be enfranchised on the rights of their husbands' qualifications is "fantastic."

over the women of the district. By brewing potions and seeing spirits she persuaded the ignorant and isolated village women that she was inspired by the devil, she both killed the women to murder and made the poison. Then she exacted blackmail and forbade confessions.

When arrested Paszka committed suicide.

The murders apparently went on for almost twenty years before discovery. Then an anonymous letter put the police on the track and a body in a remote village of the district of Tiszazug was exhumed.

Arsenic was found. Of fifty bodies examined arsenic was found in forty-six.

POLICE POWERLESS

The police, nevertheless, were powerless for months to extract confessions or prepare their case before the women were banded together, distorted what little evidence there was, and made it impossible to pin any one crime on any one person. Only twenty cases could be tried.

When the trials began most of the women seemed dazed to discover that murder was a crime or even a sin. They accepted the verdicts in stolid nonchalance.

Two tanks at each end hold the mirrors which shuttle the light back and forth, and also contain the motor and mechanism which manipulate the mirrors. The tanks are supported on concrete piers, and the mirrors inside are mounted on separate steel supports for the mirrors must stand steady still regardless of vibrations in the tube caused by temperature changes, and by stresses in the structure itself. The mirrors must stand still, because they have to reflect straight lines of light up and down the tube ten times, then shoot it out through the same tiny window through which it enters the vacuum without touching anything except the mirrors.

THIRTEEN MOTORS

The mirrors have to be adjusted by thirteen small motors on the mirror mountings inside the vacuum.

By means of five wires from the north end of the tube, the vacuum is observed room at the south end of the installation, all thirteen motors are operated.

Voters' List Revision Will Close Today

TODAY is the last opportunity for those eligible to vote at a Federal election to see that their names are included on the voters' list. The Court of Revision will hold its final sittings in Victoria in two periods today, from 10 a.m. to noon and again from 2:30 to 4 p.m., at the Court-house, Bastion Street. Upwards of 22,000 names are on the Federal list for this area. Judge Lampman will sit as the revising officer.

A tour around the world, the journey taking five months and covering 40,000 miles, was graphically described in a half-hour address at the Kiwanis Club luncheon yesterday by Mr. Charles E. Blaney, of Vancouver, travelling agent of the C.P.R. Mr. Blaney, who illustrated his remarks with the use of a large map, particularly commented on the efficiency which predominates in Italy under the Mussolini rule. He described a visit to Egypt and later spoke of the glories of the Taj Mahal at Agra and of the trip to Delhi, Calcutta and Madras. The speaker was of the opinion that China would surprise the world once she had accustomed herself to modern machinery and methods. Mr. Blaney had then visited Japan, returning to New York via the Panama Canal.

Mr. C. E. Blaney Describes Scenes of Beauty and Interest in Many Parts of Globe

Mr. Herbert Stevens, president of the club, tendered the good wishes of the Kiwanians to Mr. H. M. Dignon, who left last night for the Atlantic City to represent the club at the forthcoming international convention. Mr. C. Pangman presented Mr. Victor Meston with the Humphries Cup for the best golfer in the club. Mr. V. King gained second award and the third prize went to Mr. F. M. McGregor.

Applicant had been convicted in the Vancouver police court of keeping a disorderly house, and sentenced to pay a fine of $100. He appealed against the conviction. The Court of Appeal dismissed the appeal. Mr. W. C. Moresby, K.C., for the Crown; Mr. H. S. Coulter, K.C., for the appellant.

SIGHTSEEING CAR OPERATORS FINED

Allowed Sign Advertising Trip to Remain on Their Bus Within Prohibited Area

For allowing a sign advertising one of their trips to remain on their sightseeing car within the prohibited area, Hugh E. Calwell and Thomas de Macedo were fined $250 by Magistrate George Jay in the City Police Court yesterday.

Inspector Bolton testified that the sign had been placed on the sidewalk in front of the car, and finally on the bus. It bore the words: "Next coach leaves for Mr. Butcher's world famous gardens and Saanich Peninsula drive at 1:40 o'clock. Tickets $1."

Witness said he had seen de Macedo sell tickets to two men on the street, after they had seen the sign and asked whether or not the next trip was the "one-dollar tour."

The accused stated that while the company usually placed the sign on its own property, new drivers had inadvertently shifted it to the sidewalk and later to the sightseeing bus.

Magistrate Jay said that the sign had been placed on the sidewalk when the car was about to leave and the price of the ride. He held that the sign was a solicitation to ride in the vehicle.

Court of Appeal Victoria Sittings

Esquimalt Waterworks Company, re Taxation.—In this case, the company was not liable to payment of income tax on the grounds that it was not in existence, after that all the shares and assets of the company were vested in the City of Victoria. The judge of the court of revision found that the company, though in liquidation, was still existent, and that all its shares were not vested in the City of Victoria. He therefore held that it was liable to taxation under Part 9 of the Taxation Act, which provides for the taxation of certain public utility corporations. The Court of Appeal reserved judgment. Mr. H. S. Coulter, K.C., for the Crown; Mr. H. A. Maclean, K.C., for Esquimalt Waterworks Company.

Ex (s) vs. Plastine (A).—Appellant had been convicted in the Vancouver police court of keeping a disorderly house, and sentenced to pay a fine of $100. He appealed against the conviction. The Court of Appeal dismissed the appeal. Mr. W. C. Moresby, K.C., for the Crown; Mr. H. S. Coulter, K.C., for the appellant.

MacInnes (A) vs. Cartwright & Crickmore, Limited (R).—Appellant had delivered a certificate for certain shares to respondent for sale at a specific price. He alleged that respondent had sold the shares and had failed to account for them. Respondent alleged that the certificate was deposited with it as collateral security for the purchase of certain shares in another company, and that it had been unable to sell the shares at the price required by appellant. It also alleged that the certificate in question was a certificate for shares in a company whose name had been changed, and though respondent did not hold the original certificate deposited with it, it held a certificate which had been substituted after the change in name had taken place. Appellant's claim for damages was dismissed and it was held that he was entitled to the shares in question. The Court of Appeal reserved judgment. Mr. J. A. MacInnes for appellant; Mr. J. W. deB. Farris, K.C., for respondent.

MacInnes (A) vs. May (R); Marshall (A) vs. May (R).—In both cases appellants had sued respondent for damages by reason of the fact that respondent had operated an automobile service station and garage in the city of Vancouver and had sold at a specific address in the city of Vancouver. Respondent applied for, in the Supreme Court, and obtained, a writ of prohibition to restrain the City of Vancouver and the child in that the judge of the County Court of Vancouver had no jurisdiction and no jurisdiction had been exercised on the face of the complaint. The Court of Appeal held that the County Court judge could take judicial notice of the fact that a writ of prohibition to restrain the City of Vancouver and the child in that the judge of the County Court of Vancouver had no jurisdiction and no jurisdiction had been exercised on the face of the complaint. The Court of Appeal held that the County Court judge could take judicial notice of the fact that a writ of prohibition to restrain the City of Vancouver and the child in that the judge of the County Court of Vancouver had no jurisdiction and no jurisdiction had been exercised on the face of the complaint.

Cowichan District Again To Become War-Swept Area

Troops of British Columbia Will Go Into Camp at Quamichan Lake Next Saturday for Summer Field Manoeuvres

Once again the Cowichan district is on the eve of being plunged into the horrors of war; once again troops will bivouac in a field by the edge of Quamichan Lake; once again the day will be made hideous by the discharging of lethal weapons, and the nights rendered melodious by bursts of song. Once again, in point of fact, the entire garrison of Military District No. II, under command of Brigadier J. Sutherland Brown, C.O.G., D.S.O., will go into camp for summer manoeuvres. On Friday next the advanced parties of cooks and engineers will leave for Quamichan Lake to prepare the ground for the troops. On Saturday morning the Victoria troops will proceed by sea to Maple Bay, where, unlike last year, disembarkation will be carried out without opposition.

CHURCH PARADE ON SUNDAY
On Sunday morning there will be muster parades and regimental church parades, the latter to be held in camp this year, which will occupy the greater part of the forenoon. The afternoon the troops will move to certain positions, known only to the powers that be at the present time; and will there bivouac for the night, pending an attack, which has been planned for the following morning. The opposing force will be properly picketed, the men sleeping with their rifles and equipment ready to hand.

The attack is expected to take place early on Monday morning, the attackers being 1st Battalion Canadian Scottish Regiment, 11th Fortress Signalling Company, 15th Field Brigade Canadian Artillery, 1st Battalion Irish Fusiliers of Canada, 2nd Anti-Aircraft Section, 62nd Battery (Howitzer) Canadian Artillery, 1st Battalion Seaforth Highlanders of Canada, and a strong detachment from Duncan.

THE DEFENDING FORCE
The defending force in "The Second Battle of Apple Bay," as it will be officially called, will be composed of all naval detachments, including those from H.M.S. Dauntless and H.M.C.S. Vancouver, 5th B.C. Horse, 1st Battalion Westminster Regiment and 1st Battalion Vancouver Regiment. After the position has been carried or the attackers decisively repulsed, the troops will return to camp, and the remainder of the day will be taken up with sports. Camp will be struck on Tuesday and the troops will return to Vancouver and Victoria, by sea, disembarking at 5 p.m.

LIBERAL GOVERNMENT'S RECORD

One record of the present Liberal administration at Ottawa on which Mr. Mackenzie King does not dwell, does not even touch in his campaign speeches, is the development of population in the country during the last decade. A country's growth is now being the rising barometer of population. How does Canada stand? In 1921 the official census gave us a population of 8,788,000. Since that date, according to the latest available figures, there have been 2,172,622 births and 938,866 deaths. Thus the natural increase should be 1,233,756. In addition to this the number of immigrants reaching the country since 1921 has been 1,130,650.

On the basis of the foregoing figures if Canada had held her own natural increase and the influx of immigrants her population today should be 11,152,415. Far from reaching this total it is placed at the figure of 9,996,800 by the Federal Bureau of Statistics. This indicates that the Dominion has not even held the natural increase of her population and that she has lost more than those who have received by immigration. If the foregoing figures are correct, and the authority is a government source, then Canada, under Liberalism at Ottawa, has lost 1,355,655 persons of whom the vast proportion were engulfed by the exodus to the United States. In other words, we have lost more than one-tenth of our population. Mr. Mackenzie King says the record of his Government is one of the issues in the present election campaign. The figures quoted are a melancholy indictment of that record.

POLITICAL FUTURE OF INDIA

Recent happenings in India have probably postponed instead of hastened the day when some measure of home rule will be instituted in that country. The publication of the Simon Commission report has not altered the situation. It has, perhaps, made new little that is not known and has not been known for a long time to those thoroughly conversant with Indian affairs—those Anglo-Indians who, through generations, have studied the races and castes, the religions and rivalries of the system of divide et impera which makes up the Empire of India.

The Simon Commission report leaves the question of the future of India unanswered to some extent. A process of devolution towards a federal consummation is proposed, not necessarily on the lines of any British model. It is, in fact, something in the nature of an ultimate fusion that is suggested, the bringing into line of the elements which make up British India and the native states. While the British system is not put forward as a model it may be noted that the Simon report proposes, as is the case in the British Dominions, that the Governor-in-Council should be the active central executive. Seemingly the first step towards ultimate autonomy is the establishment of the provinces as self-governing units. Then the suggestion is that there should be a Council for Greater India, a consultative body designed to find a via media for the unification of British India and the states.

One safeguard to govern any development of the future is the security of the gateway of the Northwest. To insure this the army in India must be strong. "We hold," says the report, "that for many years the presence of British troops and British officers serving in Indian regiments will be essential." There is an admission that the danger of disorder is ever present and that "nowhere in the world is there such frequent need for courageous and prompt action as in India, and nowhere is the penalty for hesitation and weakness greater."

The most tangible of all the recommendations contained in the report is that which urges an investigation to see what points there are in common between the Indian States and British India and how a move for a united India can be engineered. As matters stand at present it is not clear that there will be any immediate move to put the Simon recommendations into effect. The time is inopportune and if there were a move in that direction now it might but serve to fan the flames of revolt that have been set alight by Gandhi.

From the British standpoint and Great Britain's future in the Orient the saving grace of the report is the statement that "India and Great Britain are so related that Indian defence cannot now, or in any future within sight, be regarded as a matter of purely Indian concern. The control and direction of such an army (the Indian Army), must rest in the hands of agents of the Imperial Government."

PROTECTING COMPOSERS

The British Parliament has a very difficult problem before it in deciding how far a composer has rights to his own music. An inventor who patents a piece of machinery secures the right to payment for each reproduction of that piece of machinery, but the purchaser may do what he likes with it, when he has bought it, without further payment. An author can exact payment for every copy of his book that is printed or sold, and with most books the purchaser may do as he likes. He may read them aloud; he may read them to great audiences all over the country if great audiences want to hear them. If, however, the book is a play, the actors may not act the play simply because they have bought the book; they or the man engaging them must pay for the acting rights.

Then what is the procedure affecting a piece of music? Music is copyright like a book in the sense that everyone buying the sheets of music, bound or unbound, pays something to the composer or his representative. It is also copyright in the same sense as a play, for the composer has the right to exact payment for its reproduction in sound, whether from a piano, or an orchestra, or from human throats, whenever it is sung in public. The difficulty here is that the composer does not know as easily as the playwright does when his work is being performed. To meet this difficulty a society was formed, called the Performing Rights Society, which goes to great trouble to find out these things. So successful has it been that people are now crying out against what they call its tyranny. The British Broadcasting Company alone has paid out $225,000 for performing the works of its members and every little village institute in Great Britain has had to pay its bit in proportion.

Now a bill is before Parliament, and has been read a second time, limiting the amount a composer may charge for the performance of his work. As the Bill stands, he may only charge four cents extra on each copy sold to the performer. That is to say, if the Bill goes through as it stands a singer or a musician, if he pays four cents extra on the price of a printed copy of a song, may perform it wherever he likes, as often as he likes, and charge as much as he likes to the people before whom he performs it. A great orchestra may reproduce it in a crowded Albert Hall for four cents added to the cost of the score used by each member of the orchestra. Naturally, this has caused a great outcry, and some other arrangement will certainly be made to take the place of this two-penny levy. People who play for money should pay the composer, or the producer of their means of making money, something out of their takings. The question is, how much? In the vast majority of cases, four cents is too little. Many people think that, given the machinery for collecting the fees, the amount will settle itself according to the law of supply and demand.

It is paradoxical that some of our universities would be responsible for and perpetrate an erroneous use of the English language. They speak of "commencement exercises" when what is meant is the closing of the university year. The word "exercises" is wholly out of place and it would puzzle a university professor to show what it means in the circumstances. There is also the expression "was graduated" that is used. "Twas" is superfluous. If our universities must borrow from the United States let them acquire only what is best in education not misapprehensions of the use of the English language.

Lawlessness in Chicago gave a summary answer to The Chicago Tribune's advertising campaign endeavoring to show that the city's reputation for banditry was undeserved. In the midst of the campaign Alfred J. Lingle, a Tribune reporter, was murdered "because he knew too much." Now The Tribune has turned its attention to hunting down the murderers. In the meantime The New York Herald-Tribune hopes that Lingle "is the last martyr, journalistic or other, to a condition as sinister as ever confronted a mining camp in the days of the vigilantes."

The latest tariff bill of the United States is held by its supporters to be a guarantee of American prosperity. Of it The Washington Post says: "It protects all workers in factory and field. It favors American factories against foreign factories. It holds the American market for Americans first. It adheres to the rule that has built up the greatest industrial nation in the world, with the highest wages, the best standard of living and the broadest opportunities to brain and brawn that humanity has ever seen."

ON PLAYING GOLF

American golfers may beat the English, but they do not show the nonchalance with which the latter play the game. With us championship tournaments seem to be business. With the English they are sport. Nowhere in this country would a player be found strolling up to the first tee, dressed in his ordinary clothes, hat and all, pipe in mouth and putting up so stiff a game as to carry our best to the eighteenth hole. And there is something fascinating in the story of the Scotch milk wagon driver who tackled Bobby Jones as if he were just another golfer and forced him to shoot his head off in order to win. Bobby had just finished thirteen straight fours and but one hole over that number of strokes in the round.

Then there was the game between Johnston, present American amateur champion, and an Englishman who won the British amateur twenty-two years ago, still going so strong that he hit but Johnston out. There are many unknowns at St. Andrews who can make anybody understand that beating him is a real job.

English writers say that Americans take golf more seriously than the English. There is doubtless something in the contention, but every golfer will take off his hat to players who enter championship contests apparently with as little concern as if they were ordinary matches. Perhaps it takes several hundred years of golf to acquire that sublime indifference—Baltimore Sun.

THE DOORNAIL

The phrase "dead as a doornail" (it puzzled Dickens, who had quite a wrong theory about it—see first page "A Christmas Carol"), is explained once and for all in good old John Knox's house in Canonville, Edinburgh. declares Mr. Morton. Here, fixed to an oak door, is an old Scottish "doornail." It is a rough cast, heavy chunk of iron with a small hammer-like head. In repose, the hammer rests against a metal bolt. When lifted and dropped against this bolt the "doornail" makes the deadead of all dead sounds. It is a chill, uncheering crash—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Habit is a cable; we weave a thread of it each day until it becomes so strong we cannot break it.—Horace Mann.

Note and Comment

By R. R. D.

Her were are ways of pleasantness
And all her paths are peace.

There he none of beauty's daughters with
A smile like to thee,
Like music on the waters is thy sweet
Voice to me.

The big motor bus was returning from somewhere in the country. That was not an unusual sight to be seen on the streets of Victoria these days and nights. But the big bus was a special bus. It was so crowded inside with children that some children had been perched on the roof outside. The little ones evidently had been spending a day in the houses as happy and carefree as only children can be after spending a day in the country, where everything is so clean and wholesome, where the trees lift up their voices in song and there is sweet music in the running brooks. It was a pleasant sight to see, that crowd of happy children, and it was a very pleasant thing to hear their voices lifted up in song at the end of what to them must have been a perfect day.

We asked an onlooker and listener the occasion for so much apparent joy and happiness, and were told it was a picnic. But the average picnic does not create that feeling of joy and gladness in the heart which must find expression in song. To many people who are no longer in the enviable state of childhood the average picnic is a bore. There is no longer any poetry in the average picnic; but there is poetry in motion, and we have learned by long experience that the emotion created by motion generally finds expression in song.

There is poetry in the motion of the spheres; there is poetry in the movement of ships, of trains and in the machinery by which ships and trains are moved; there is poetry in the movements of every living thing as well as in the movements of every inanimate thing. There is even poetry in the swift movements of a motor car. But the driver of a motor car is never moved by the poetry of the motion of his car to lift up his voice in song. The driver of the big bus in which the children were singing did not join in the song of the children. His mind was occupied with other things, with thoughts of the dangers of the streets and with his business of delivering his cargo of precious human beings safely at its destination.

In the days when speed was not the essence of life and was not esteemed absolutely essential to success in business, people who lived in the country places went about their business in a leisurely manner, and probably unconsciously, were deeply influenced by the natural beauties of their physical environment. The ploughman whistled behind his team and his plough. The carter sang a song as he trudged along beside his horse. We once intimately knew a farmer who had never been heard to sing at the most festive and convivial of social gatherings, who never was known at least by his immediate contemporaries to join in a dance howler, ever volitionally the pipe blew; but when the stern old fellow had his favorite mare yoked to his gig and went for a jaunt round the countryside and picked up by the wayside he could not refrain from singing, not like the lark in the bush, or the cuckoo in the bush, but in a way that displayed the manner of his intentions. He was moved by the poetry of motion and by the natural harmonies of his surroundings.

The motor car has destroyed all interesting manifestations of that kind. The driver of a motor car never sings. He is dead to everything except the road ahead. He must keep his eye upon that road and anticipate what may be around the corner. Eternal vigilance is the price of his life and the lives of his companions in the swiftly moving machine. The ways around Victoria are the ways of pleasantness. The country around Victoria is a country of matchless beauty. The trees by the wayside are clapping their hands in joy. There is music in the placid waters of the lake and in the low murmurs of the running brooks; but this is an age of the machine, and the man in the machine has no time to enjoy such things. He is not thinking of the wondrous beauties of his environment. He is thinking of his journey's end, which may be merely a game of golf or the possibilities of a business deal. Then when he does finally reach his journey's end, when he has beaten his opponent at golf, or his business deal has been successful, will he be really conscious of what he has missed at the end of his busy, rushing, successful life?

There is said to be a business depression brooding over the world—the deepest depression, we are told, within seventy years. Victoria does not seem to be deeply affected by it.

the world-wide business depression. Business men tell us that while there is little outward appearance of the effects of the general depression here, inwardly the effects of the general depression can be felt, and that the worst is yet to come. Yet, there is a leisurely and enjoyable trip through all the districts surrounding the city, the impression left upon us is that of a place increasing in grace and beauty and strength and exhibiting marked signs of material prosperity. One of the chief attributes of Victoria is that she seems to be immune from the business ills which affect her neighbors.

Dea Ex Machina

(By an Eyewitness in The London Times)

At 4:30 p.m. on May 11, before the inhabitants of a certain Indian plain station had aroused themselves from their afternoon search for sleep, an aeroplane appeared out of the sky. It circled round the station twice, appeared to land, rose again, and departed in an easterly direction. About half an hour later, the station now being awake again, the colonel, standing on his veranda, undecided whether to ride or watch the plane, saw a small, dark, winged plane coming from the East. As he watched it he saw that all was not well with it. Hastily, he gathered a crowd of his men and attempted to light a fire, hoping that the column of smoke would indicate the plane's direction and help the aviator to land.

But it was too late—the plane was down. Down on the regimental parade ground and charging at high speed towards the barracks. It landed in a very round tree, barely missed an iron telegraph post, scattered a group of men waiting to mount guard, smashed into the main hall of the barracks, and, after a few moments' hesitation, then came to rest wedged between two of the barrack buildings. There was a race to reach it. From the cockpit climbed a figure. It was a girl—youth, almost a child, fair, wearing only a shift, an ill-fitting pair of khaki shorts, socks and shoes, and a flying helmet. The skin on her face, arms, and legs was burnt and blistered by the sun, and tears were not far from her tired eyes. The colonel, advancing towards the unexpected visitor, with a welcoming smile said: "Good afternoon, Miss Johnson!"

"I am two days ahead of Bert Hink's time so far," she said, "and now I'm afraid everything is ruined." Inspection of the plane, however, revealed that the damage was irreparable, and a new light of battle appeared in her eyes. There was much to be done. The broken wing must be mended, the old oil replaced by new petrol procured and poured into the almost empty tanks. Nuts and screws must be tightened and adjusted, and the sparking plugs changed. By this time a little army of willing helpers had collected, and each proudly played his small part in this epic of the air.

About 9 p.m. a halt was called. Miss Johnson was rushed in a car to a bungalow near by, where a bath and a change of clothing awaited her. Then, after a simple dinner, an elaborate banquet. "I left London six days ago," she said, "and haven't had more than three hours' sleep. And a little later, was a first night today." Wind was passed round and a simple toast was drunk to the heroine. The mess visitors' book was produced and, for the first time, a woman's name was inscribed on its pages. Then back to the cars and up to the lines to make all ready for an early start the next morning. A crowd of Indian women had collected round the plane. They begged that this "Miss Sahib" would just touch them with her hand, a request which, they said, Miss Johnson cheerfully acceded to. Then while she slept on a chair, later replaced by a "charpoy," mere man and woman of the Indian race looked on with the forty-two gallons of aviation spirit—and all was ready. Refreshed by sleep, cheered by the good wishes of the Indian people, her fellow-countrymen, early the next morning Miss Armstrong Johnson made a perfect take-off for her next hop to Calcutta.

WHEAT OR PEOPLE?

Sir—Having for half a century boasted of our wheat, of the inexhaustible fertility and illuminable extent of this "granary of the Empire," in a twinkling we have swung to the other extreme. From extravagant optimism, we have suddenly turned into "view-with-alarmists." A reverse of the domination of wheat was long overdue. The present fear of overproduction which has caused it may or may not prove justified; but the revolt itself is to be welcomed, on grounds imperative beyond the slightest doubt.

The ruinous practice of continuous wheat-growing has not only been destroying both the chemical fertility and the mechanical texture of the soil—wheat of all, it has kept down the population of our countryside, at a time when a large increase of our productive rural population is Canada's most urgent need.

The increased use of machinery, wheat-growing, will obviously not make but aggravate these evils. By making wheat easier and cheaper to raise, and thus stimulating the production of that crop, it will hasten the ruin of our soil and at the same time further reduce our rural population.

"Mixed farming," intensive cultivation, scientific agriculture with adequate livestock, is the only remedy, as even the leading wheat specialists admit. Such a system alone will enable a large number of independent but closely co-operating families to make a good living, on areas well within their means, without the isolation of sparse settlement. Such an efficient and deservedly trusted organization as the migration branch of the Salvation Army, with its experienced colonization staff, would certainly be able to find thousands of families of exactly the type required among the better kind of workers, not necessarily field workers, in the crowded Old Country. These would be joined by many who have drifted into Canadian towns because unable to buy or handle large farms of 160 or 320 acres, and by thousands of industrious people used to making the most of very small farms in Central and Northern Europe.

Instead of impatiently crying out against immigration, because too large a population can be accommodated on land given up to grain-growing, we should bestir ourselves to devise methods of intensive agriculture which would at one and the same time save the fertility of our soil from destruction and give our countrymen a more adequate and prosperous population it sadly lacks today.

HOWARD ANGUS KENNEDY,
Montreal, Que., June 16, 1930.

CANADIAN NATIONAL

Sir—If a will was found in Victoria that had been lost sight of since 1913, entitling the heirs to a large sum of money, and action taken to get it, what a vast amount of interest would be shown by the general public in a document of that sort, even by those that were not entitled to any portion of the estate. It is a matter of importance in which all should take an interest.

It is not astonishing that after my pointing out the former letters (and still no action taken), that the people of Vancouver Island by statutes passed 1913 and previously (under the Canadian Northern Railway) are entitled to one hundred and seventy additional miles of railway in this island, worth eight million five hundred thousand dollars (not including recompense for nonfulfillment of terms long overdue).

MARTIAL LAW PREVAILS IN SPANISH TOWN

Armed Civil Guards Patrol Seville as City Is Quiet After Two Days of Rioting

250 PERSONS ARE HURT IN CLASHES

SEVILLE, Spain, June 24.—Civil guards, walking armoured with pistols, rifles, sabres and sawed-off shotguns, patrolled Seville tonight as the city quieted after two days of rioting that has caused one death and 250 injuries.

The death was that of Jose Arvalo, eleven years' old, who was struck by a stray bullet.

Some 300 riot leaders have been arrested in the two days of rioting following a general strike. The city is in a virtual state of martial law with civil guards and police on active duty and troops of the regular army ready to act if called upon.

TROUBLE DEVELOPS

The strike began peacefully, but trouble developed when rumors spread that Antonio Vargas, a woman worker in an olive factory, died as a result of police treatment during a previous strike.

Authorities said the woman died in childbirth, but ordered an official investigation. They charged the rumors of police brutality were spread by professional agitators.

Rioting Monday caused 150 injuries, but today started off calmly enough until nonunion bakers began selling bread on the streets. Strikers and sympathizers attacked them. The rioting soon spread to other parts of the city and was intensified when attempts were made to run street cars, the operators of which had joined the strike.

FIRE SHOTS IN AIR

Each car was ridden by two armed guards as it appeared. They fired shots in the air but were soon overpowered. The angry strikers demolished four cars, chased away the crews of others and caused the rest to return to the barns.

About 300 persons have been arrested. Warrants have been issued for twenty leaders, but police say most of them have fled.

Too Soon Ban, alias Choo Sun Bun, appeared in the City Police Court yesterday, charged with stealing $930, and was remanded until today by Magistrate George Jay. DECORATION IS UNUSUAL TYPE

SPECIAL FEATURES ASSOCIATED WITH NEW HOUSE AT 756 FALKLAND ROAD

Messrs. Prentiss & Company Carry Through Exceptional Scheme

Among the many problems that assail the prospective home builder, none is harder to solve than that of interior decoration. Definite plans and specifications are impossible to procure and even a sample of the work is often misleading. To those who are interested in the subject, a unique opportunity is afforded today, when the new house, constructed by Mr. H. A. Brown, of the City Brokerage, 1009 Blanshard Street, is thrown open to public inspection from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Located in a central position, 756

Falkland Road, just north of Central Avenue, it is anticipated that many will take advantage of the chance to examine a really fine piece of construction and interior decoration.

Throughout the whole building the decoration has been carried out by E. Prentiss & Son, 1011 Blanshard, and every color scheme is carefully chosen to suit the particular needs of this home. Entering the hall the eye is taken by the finish of Spanish stipples, in tan and sienna, blending well with the stipples of the living room, seen through a communicating arch. Here the finish is of the same Spanish stipples, in canary yellow and old rose. The floral designs, executed in the manner of wall panels, are artistically wrought and make a pleasing decoration. In the dining-room the finish is the same in rose and brown, with the same pattern of design about the walls. In the den the hue is polychrome blend of old silver, making an ever-changing and restful color scheme. In the kitchen and also in the bathroom the design is that of tile work, worked in black and grey. Throughout the whole the attractive feature is that of the washable quality of the paint. After two heavy ground coats of good quality paint a special washable varnish is applied, rendering it immune from ill effects when water is applied. This is a revolutionary innovation of the decorator's art, and supplies a long felt want, that of a artistic color scheme that will stand the constant washing that sanitation and cleanliness require.

Another form of finish is found in the bedrooms, that of Spanish stipples, wrought in alabaster. The master room, in old rose is especially attractive.

VOTED FOR BY-LAW

The name of Alderman Litchfield was omitted inadvertently from the list of council members who voted in favor of the introduction and first reading of the appropriation by-law before the City Council on Monday evening. Alderman Litchfield voted in favor of both the introduction of the measure, and its first reading.

CONSTITUTION IS SUSPENDED

British Gov't Acts in View of Tense Political Situation in Malta Over Dispute With Vatican

DECISION IS MADE WITH RELUCTANCE

(Associated Press)

LONDON, June 24.—The British Government has decided to suspend the Maltese constitution temporarily, in view of a tense political situation in the island arising from a prolonged dispute with the Vatican.

Premier MacDonald announced the Government's decision in the House of Commons. He said: "In view of the situation in Malta, the Government has decided with considerable reluctance that it has no alternative but to sanction temporary suspension of the constitution."

The Prime Minister said full legislative and executive authority would remain in the hands of the Governor.

The existing ministry, the Premier said, will remain in office and will be available in a consultative capacity if the Governor wishes to make use of its services.

The necessary legislation to give effect to the suspension will be submitted to His Majesty in council as an emergency measure forthwith.

Yesterday afternoon was taken up with a business session, when matters of importance to the association were discussed. In the afternoon, while the men played the second round of their golf tournament, the ladies of the party held a special tea and bridge party.

In the evening a most enjoyable banquet took place at the Empress Hotel. His Worship Mayor Anson addressed the guests, assuring them that they would always be welcome on any future occasion. Mr. Rufus Holman, of Portland, responded, thanking the Mayor for the hospitality which had been shown the delegates, and speaking in warm terms of the impressions of Victoria and the surrounding country. At the end of the banquet an excellent programme of music was furnished.

Today, Mr. F. V. Simpson, of Portland, will address the delegates on "What Constitutes a Profit, and Why?"

Pittaluga

... physician to the aristocracy of Spain

He says, "Yeast will banish constipation, renew appetite, aid digestion..."

"It is needless to say," declares Dr. Pittaluga, "that an important chapter of my research work has been devoted to yeast."

"Yeast stimulates the glands and has a tonic effect on the general health. In sufficient quantity, it is of great assistance in keeping the intestinal tract clean and healthy. Its use will banish constipation, renew appetite and aid digestion."

"Yeast is abundant in vitamin B. Vitamin D is also present in yeast which has been exposed to ultra-violet rays. This vitamin is necessary to build and keep bones and teeth strong and sound."

How easy it is—this safe new way to regular bodily habits, to rich new energy and life! Just eat 3 cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast every day, following the directions on the label. Each cake is rich in two vitamins indispensable to perfect health—B and D. At grocers, restaurants, drug stores and soda fountains.

Fleischmann's Yeast is made in Canada by Canadians.

"Irregular meals and irregular hours while serving in the World War gave me constipation and stomach trouble," writes Chas. L. BURKE of Church Point (Dyke Co.), N. S. "Since then I was caused distress by intestinal troubles until I began eating Fleischmann's Yeast regularly. It certainly did me a lot of good."

Fleischmann's Yeast (with the familiar yellow label) is the only yeast that contains "sunshine vitamin."

Physicians to Royalty Urge Yeast

DR. GUSTAV SINGER, of Vienna, has been decorated by kings for his services to royalty. He says, "Yeast is the best intestinal cleanser known."

DR. MARTIN MENDELSSOHN was physician to the sister of Kaiser Wilhelm I of Germany. He says, "Constipation can undermine the whole system. Yeast checks it."

PROF. DR. ERNST KROMAYER, head of the aristocratic Kromayer Sanatorium in Berlin, declares, "Through its strongly purifying effect on the intestinal tract, yeast overcomes skin affections."

"I was so miserable I didn't feel like going out," writes Mrs. MARGARET R. LEWIS of Philadelphia. "My intestinal functioning was bad. After eating yeast my skin cleared, my intestinal troubles were corrected and my old energy returned. My doctor urged me to continue with the yeast."

FOX FUR FARMERS HOLD CONFERENCE

Fur Market Conditions Are Reported to Be Satisfactory

The executive of the B.C. Fox & Fur Farmers' Association Inc. met at the head office, 365 Cordova Street West, Vancouver, recently. Present were: Mr. W. Miller, president, in the chair; Mr. J. A. Hird (Dumby Island) vice-president; and Messrs. Barber (Millardville), Mallory (Chilliwack), Pallen (Vancouver) and V. A. Bourne, secretary.

Owing to the large amount of correspondence and detailed work of the association, it was decided to adjourn the meeting until the next meeting, but a great deal of useful work in the interests of the association was done, with first being the arrangements for the registration and scoring of fur-bearing animals, which the executive anticipates having in shape for the use of breeders this fall.

From reports received from different parts of British Columbia, it appears that the breeding season this year has been up to the average in young stock and, with the improved outlook in the fur market, conditions for business this fall appear decidedly encouraging.

It is the intention of the association to co-operate with all its members in regard to the disposal or marketing of all farm-raised pelts this year. Another object of the association is to educate its members and all fur farmers as to the best methods for handling, feeding, etc., of the various kinds of fur-bearing animals according to localities where such animals are being farmed. The office of the association is open at all times to give information and to answer questions pertaining to the fur business and the raising of the standard in quality of farm-raised fur in this province.

The association is still very strongly of the opinion that fur farming should come under the jurisdiction of the Department of Agriculture's livestock branch, as is the case in almost every other province in the Dominion.

Every effort is being made to get the Provincial Government to recognize this fact and also to give this rapidly growing and thriving industry the support it demands.

MANY INQUIRIES

It is fully expected that there will be a number of inquiries from Europe this fall for British Columbreeding stock from advertising and every member of this association will have available such inquiries to quote upon.

Applications for membership are steadily increasing and have been applied for from the Nanaimo district, where a branch is now being formed to be affiliated with this provincial body. The secretary of this association will be pleased to hear from breeders of any fur-bearing animals being farmed and to answer any questions about the work of this organization. It is hoped that an exhibition of all kinds of fur-bearing animals will be staged this year in connection with the Vancouver Winter Fair, when the animals will be more or less in their prime, and to this end the executive is in touch with the management of the Winter Fair.

PICNIC PLANS

Sanwich Conservative Association Prepares for Dominion Day Celebration

A splendid programme of sports and other forms of entertainment has been arranged for the picnic of the Sanwich Conservative Association to be held on Dominion Day at Elk Lake. The speakers who are to address the gathering will be the Premier, Hon. S. F. Tolmie, Mr. C. H. Dickie and Mr. D. B. Plunkett. Mr. W. O. Wallace, the president, who returned last week from Toronto, has matters well in hand, and the different committees are hard at work in order that the success of the picnic may be assured. Mrs. F. F. Osborn, first vice-president and convenor of the picnic committee, has called a meeting for tonight at 1239 Broad Street, at 8 o'clock, in order to complete arrangements. Good transportation facilities have been arranged.

UNIQUE CONTEST IS CONTEMPLATED

On Thursday evening at 7 o'clock a unique contest will take place at the Victoria School of Expression, Cook Street, with a view to encouraging students to maintain the highest standard of spoken English. The contest will be open to former or present students, to adults or juniors. Each competitor will be announced by number only and will speak unseen by the adjudicators, so expression or personality will not affect the marks. Voice production and enunciation only will be taken into consideration. Great interest is being taken in the contest by all members of the Better Speech Movement, started in the school last year. There will be two adjudicators, both good medalists.

Tragedy of Caste vs. Art Recalled by Etchings

Story of Kenzo Takekoshi, Japanese Artist, Brought to Attention by Some of His Work Shown in Collection of Pictures in the City

Kenzo Takekoshi was the son of a Japanese baron who held the position of governor of one of the provinces. The younger Takekoshi became a prominent Government architect and in 1917 was sent to London to study Western architecture. He mastered the English language, distinguished himself in the profession and after lecturing before the Royal Institute of British Architects was made a member of the institute.

He also studied etching under Lund, R.E., and executed twelve etchings on copper which created a stir in the artistic world of Europe. His work being lavishly reproduced in The Studio, The Queen, The Field and other well known and critical journals. Almost overnight he found himself famous. But this entry into the field of art was his undoing. In the Japanese code an artist is regarded as a tradesman and may have no social aspirations. Even the great Hiroshige, greatest of modern Japanese artists, was all his life a social outcast in his own country. As soon as the old baron learned of his son's artistic triumph in London he made prompt representations to the Japanese Government, with the result that Kenzo was recalled to Tokyo to make his choice between art and his caste with all the privileges which it implied. His succession to his father's estates and ultimately his inheritance with his ancestors. There could be but one decision, Kenzo Takekoshi from that moment disappeared from the ken of the art world and was heard of no more in that connection. Not long afterwards he died of tuberculosis brought on, according to friends, by his bitter disappointment over the abrupt ending of his artistic career.

ETCHINGS HERE

Several of Kenzo's exquisite etchings are now in the city as part of the unusually choice collection which has been brought here within the last few days by Mr. George J. Saunders, of Sydney, Australia, who is staying at the Glenholme Hotel. The collection, assembled in London, and which has since been shown in South Africa and the United States, includes examples of woodcuts, aquatints, etchings and engravings by some of the leading craftsmen of the day, English, Scottish, Australian, American, French, Hungarian and others. Some of the pictures have not been taken out of bond owing to Federal regulations concerning the admission into Canada of such objects d'art, but those on view are among the finest in the collection and have an educational as well as artistic value for any who are privileged to see them.

First among these should be mentioned the six by the Japanese artist, Kenzo Takekoshi, "A Chinese Doorway," "Bath," "The King Charles' Statue," "Somerset House" and "Venice." These show a delicacy of detail, a fastidiousness, a sensitivity to every nuance of line which compel admiration. It will be noted from the titles that only one Japanese subject has been pictured; the others are all European, reflecting the influence of Kenzo's sojourn away from the Orient. Only a Japanese of fine culture, mentally alive to the differences between the Oriental and Occidental architectural line, could have portrayed these differences so subtly. His technique is remarkable for its finesse. The Occidental lacks the philosophy necessary for such pa-

Neither Ellen Soper nor her father, George Soper, need any introduction to most collectors. These two English etchers are very well known, the former for her delightful representation of children at play, as in "Leap Frog" and "The Family Group," the latter for her etchings of animals. The wistful, wondering, laughter and play-loving elements of childhood are marvellously combined in her "Mighty Mouse" picture, a pin-point of three or four standing at the tide's edge, bucket in hand, eager to advance, yet agitated at the thought of the water. Another woman etcher of note is Winifred Austin, the second woman after Anna Airy to be given the right to add "R.E." after her name. Among the world's etchers of birds she and Benson, the American, stand first. Her "Lapwings Alighting," and the pictures in the collection, indicate why. "Hares in the Young Wheat" has something even more attractive because of its humor.

Etching is a field which has been successfully entered by many women. Mary Shelly is represented by "The Old Quadrangle," a fine, if rather hard, bit of architectural drawing; Dorothy Kay, noted for her set of etched portraits of South African chiefs, by "Witch Doctor," "Old Oyster Girl," "Lil's Kastar," a Hungarian woman who has found a strikingly impressive way of expressing things by conventional forms, by "The Nativity," reminiscent of an old tapestry; Lucy Dawson, whose "Old Young Lady" is one of the most popular etchings in the collection, and Elizabeth Keith, a young Scottish girl, who has become the most famous color woodcut artist in the world, and recently became still more noted as the author of "Eastern Windows," describing her experiences in the Orient.

Others artists represented are Bartholomew, the Englishman, by "Noddy Rest"; Lee Hankey, also English, by the "The Fisherman"; Eugene Delort, the Frenchman, by a view of the "Seine in Paris"; Martin Hardie, keeper of the Victoria and Albert Museum collection, and who is a great authority on etching, by "Essex Boatyard," a very beautiful, strong and refined bit of work; A. M. Elliott, by "Crab Boats, Southampton"; E. Keaven, by "The Bay of Naples"; St. George, by "Venice," done in a broad style and with great freedom of line; J. H. Amshewitz, a Polish etcher, whose "Fortune Teller" is one of the most dramatic things in the collection; Gunning King, R.A., whose gift for character representation is seen in his "Woman's Head," "Lil's Kastar" (a portrait of the artist himself), and the expressive unfinished "Head Study"; Lieut.-Commander Rowland Longmaid, of His Majesty's Navy, with whom etching is a hobby, with ships as subjects by "The Cutty Sark," "Hove To for a Pilot," and "Running Up the Channel"; Percy Lancaster, another character artist who is generally considered to be Harvey's successor, by "The Cello

AUSTRALIAN WORK

Mr. Saunders for many years occupied the position of art editor of The Sydney (Australia) Bulletin, next to Punch one of the most beautiful illustrated periodicals within the Empire in the matter of etchings, etc. Naturally, therefore, one would expect to find in the collection some examples of Australian work. Nothing of the kind is to be found in the collection. It is a typically Australian scene, in the hills, which fold back softly into the distance. Delicate, luminous, brilliant, it suggests the mystical spirit of morning as the countryman sees it fresh among the hills. Van Ransle, who was a personal friend of Mr. Saunders, had his studio in a farmhouse sixty miles out of Adelaide, and in consequence got his impressions of country sunrises in his own country. This is a little gem, carried out in reddish sepia. In darker sepia are "A Karri Tree Glade," which carries a wonderful idea of silent distances among the trees of the Karri forest, and "A typical Australian incident, an ox-drawn wagon toiling along a rough road."

Sidney Long, the only Australian-born man to attain the A.R.E. who has eleven etchings in the British Museum, is represented by a very charming pastoral done by the "sandgrain" method, and "Between the Showers," which is the etching which he hung when he entered for the A.R.E.

Tom Friedenson is still another Australian who is considered both in his own country and abroad as one of the best etchers of the Australian bush. A pupil of Sir Frank Short, London, he is represented by "Young Man and Horse," an engaging portrait, "The Mountain Road," showing a bullock-drawn wagon followed by picturesque mounted bullock drivers, and "The Road," a study in the picture in dress and general type.

TWO SOPERS

Neither Ellen Soper nor her father, George Soper, need any introduction to most collectors. These two English etchers are very well known, the former for her delightful representation of children at play, as in "Leap Frog" and "The Family Group," the latter for her etchings of animals. LORDS DELETE DISTRICT LEVY IN COAL BILL

LONDON, June 24.—For the second time the House of Lords today voted to delete the district levy provision in the Coal Bill. The Government was defeated on division by 195 votes. The defeat raised what observers called serious issues as to the fate of the bill and as to the constitutional issue between the Lords and the House of Commons.

The defeat taken by itself would have little significance, as the Government is overwhelmingly in the minority in the House of Lords. The division is important because the district levy in the Coal Bill is one of the most contentious issues before Parliament.

The original bill proposed a central levy for subsidizing coal exports. This was rejected in the House of Commons, but the Government persuaded the House to insert the district levy. The district levy was deleted by the Lords and put back again by the Commons when the bill was returned.

A match of considerable importance was in progress and one player was driving and approaching brilliantly, but putting very badly. One of the spectators remarked to that player's caddy: "Your man is driving wonderfully well."

"Aye," replied the caddy apologetically, "but what's the good o' puttin' an umbrella up if your boots are leakin'."

Midsummer Fashions

Simplicity Characterizes Fashions for Afternoon and Evening—Beret Still Popular

Judging by what is worn at Le Touquet, dress tweeds, flannels, and soft woolen crepes are what golfers, tennis players, and walkers most affect, says an article in The Times (London). Knitted jumpers are preferred to blouses in windy or chilly weather, and some of them, when fitted with cardigan or hand-knitted in wool with hip pokes and worn with narrow leather or suede belts, look like blouses, since they can be pouched over the belt. Blue in all shades is fashionable; white is for sunny days; and flannel motor coats are for long sleeves, or long sleeves or quite short sleeves. At the neck, dresses close with Peter Pan collars, finished off in front with bows or knots. Skirts are pleated, and the waistline is natural. Short-sleeved chattering dresses have short coats to match.

DRESSES AND COATS
Neatly tailored jacket dresses of beige tweeds and jerseys, and white checks and beige mixtures and grey flannel are worn by golfers. On the links are also worn tweed skirts and leather or suede coats, belted and fitted with tight roll collars. With tweed coats and skirts, shirt-blouses are worn with collars and ties or fitted fronts and Peter Pan collars. Tweed skirts are often not pleated but flared, the flare coming from the insertion of straight bands which widen gradually downwards. With long tweed or flannel motor coats are worn narrow leather belts, and astrakhan, beaver or caracul collars or short, straight collars of tweed or flannel. Raglan sleeve coats are belted at the back; and there are unfitted straight coats of flannel, which are excellent in summer. A coat reaches within about an inch or two of the edge of the skirt when the two are of the same color, but if not, the dress looks neater when covered by the coat. Berets are almost the only dull weather hats; cloches are worn with white shanting and crepe dresses when the sun shines.

FOR SPORTS WEAR

Onlookers at games dress more formally, wearing broadcloth, flannel collars and cuffs, and one-piece dresses with bolero bodices, at luncheon and tea. Shoes are low-heeled and made mostly of white antelope and brown kid, brown leather, and leather-trimmed white canvas cloth. Beach pyjamas, with half-length coats, sleeveless blouses, hats and large bags are made of tussore, figured washing materials, and plain linens. Sometimes flannel and tussore are combined. There are sunshades and beach fans; and dressing-gown pyjamas with soft feather fans.

SOFTEST MATERIALS

For the evening there are now flounced dresses of black net with black taffeta insertions, and spotted black net dresses with pleated

Pretty Wedding Held Here Last Evening

The Pentecostal Assembly was the scene of a pretty wedding last night at 8 o'clock, when Rev. James Purse united in matrimony Edith Marian, only daughter of the late Mr. William Cann, of North Sydney, N.S., and of Mrs. Cann, of 484 Superior Street, to Mr. Alfred Richard Nex, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Nex, 660 Montreal Street. The church had been beautifully decorated by junior members of the congregation under the guidance of Mrs. R. Hicks, and the wedding music was played by Miss Wheeler. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Arthur Cann, and looked charming in her frock of ivory crepe-back satin with a slim bodice and long sleeves and skirt with uneven hemline, which reached to the ankles at the back. Her veil of embroidered net had been worn by her mother at her wedding. A lovely shower bouquet of Ophelia roses, Liddle's carnations, and a maidenhair fern completed the bride's attire.

Miss Johanna Fisher was maid of honor, and the bridesmaid was Miss Jean Ormiston. Both wore dainty frocks of flowered nylon in shades of yellow and green respectively, with long graduated skirts and bodices finished with cape sleeves. They carried arm bouquets of sweet peas in blending shades. Mr. Shirley Cann supported the groom.

A reception was held after the ceremony at the home of the bride's mother, where her friends had decorated the house with masses of Summer flowers. A three-tier wedding cake was placed on the supper table which was arranged with folds of mauve tulle and vases of cream roses, and lighted with mauve and yellow candles in silver holders. The bride's gift from the groom was a string of pearls. After a motoring trip on the Island, Mr. and Mrs. Nex will make their home in Victoria.

Little Bobby was playing at Ronny's house, but when time came for him to go home, it started to rain.

Ronny's mother at once gave Bobby her own son's raincoat and goloshes.

"Oh, but don't take all this trouble!" said Bobby, politely enough.

"No trouble, Bobby," she returned. "I'm sure your own mother would have done the same for Ronny."

"Mother'd do more," replied Bobby. "She'd ask Ronny to stay to tea."

Dance at Alberni

Clark's Hall, Alberni, was the scene of a merry gathering on Friday evening, when about 200 people attended the very successful fandel dance held under the auspices of the Alberni Girls' Club. The proceeds will go towards the building of the Community Hall at Alberni. For the occasion the hall was prettily arranged with masses of Summer flowers and ferns, and in the supper room the tables looked very effective with bowls of pink and white roses. Fifty orchestras, of Victoria, provided the programme of the latest dance music, to which the guests danced with enjoyment until a late hour. Among the many guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Motion, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold McLean, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Hanna, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Carter, Mr. and Mrs. H. (Body Odour)

LAST NIGHT when they skated together in the park, she had seemed so attractive. But here in the close, warm room her charm completely vanished.

She felt his coolness. The same old story. Why did she always attract men—but never hold them? It had happened so often.

But not now! Today she makes friends and keeps them. For she discovered her fault and the simple way to correct it. Let her tell you how.

"I could have cried when my uncle, who is a physician, warned me in an indirect way about 'B.O.'—body odour. For I thought I had been so careful.

But, as he explained, our pores are constantly giving off odour-causing waste—as much as a quart daily. We're so used to this familiar odour that we don't notice it in ourselves. But others do—especially in an overheated room with windows closed. And it always offends.

"So now I've adopted this simple precaution. I wash and bathe with Lifebuoy—and I love it! Lifebuoy makes me feel so gloriously fresh and clean—so safe. For its rich, creamy antiseptic lather purifies pores—banishes every trace of 'B.O.'"

New complexion beauty
Lifebuoy is a marvellous complexion soap. Its gentle, searching lather clears away all impurities from the pores. Dull skins freshen. Complexions fairly glow with clear, healthy, radiant beauty. Its pleasant, extra-clean scent—that vanishes as you rinse—just tells you Lifebuoy purifies. Adopt Lifebuoy today.

CHAPTER XXII

As the Diamond limousine sped out through the gates of Berkshire Towers its four occupants took covert stock of one another. There was the millionaire himself, poised as usual; Noah Peabody, still in his tick apron; Gately Terhune, stiff and politely uncomfortable on one of the small extra seats, and last, but by no means least, Annata West, as compact as a coiled spring and just as liable to fly off at the slightest touch.

"What time is it?" demanded the girl as she swung into the main road.

For the twentieth time Terhune consulted his wrist watch.

"Ten minutes after ten. I wish you'd stop asking, Ann. I'm beginning to feel like one of those mechanical dolls one sees in the shop windows."

Annata pushed the hair back from her forehead. "Ten minutes after ten. And it's over five miles from the Crossing to Bride's House. Please tell your man to drive faster, Mr. Diamond."

John Diamond shook his head. "We are doing forty-five now, as it is. The road is very bad. I can't see an automobile wreck would not help matters any."

After his first startled denial that the young man at Bride's House was his son—a denial which had established the fact that he had no son, had never had one—the millionaire's silence had been almost unbroken.

Aloud Ann said: "We haven't passed anyone on the road yet."

Noah, conscious of blue velvet upholstery and of a perfume like unto none he had encountered before, offered the opinion that the townpeople would not go by way of the road. A cow trail through the woods almost cut off a mile and a half. And in a crowd no one would be afraid to take it, even at night.

This place of information served to increase the girl's inward quakings. Farmers armed with scythes and axes—farmers with shot guns—grim-faced, hard-handed sons of Puritan fathers; she could picture them marching through the dark woods, lantern swinging, jaws set tight, feet thudding, and all in silence among themselves—no talking, no jesting. They would do what they had to do with a terrible earnestness, lack of humanity that called itself duty.

At last Annata, with a cry of relief: "There's the house. You can see the lights through the trees."

They drew up at the gate, and knew from the air of quiet lying over everything that they were in time.

"I won't get out," announced John Diamond when Terhune held open the door for him.

Miss Barth appeared at the front door.

"Is everything all right?" the girl asked, running up the steps to the stoop.

"All right!" Miss Barth rolled her eyes heavenward. "Is anything ever all right in this house?"

"I mean, has anything happened?"

The Scotchwoman folded her arms across her chest and stared severely over them at her young mistress. "That scallawag, David, has gone off without feeding the horses. Your mother's sapphires have been stolen. And there's a man inside who says he's beginning to see daylight, whatever that means."

"David is gone?"

There was a blankness in the cry that did not escape the alert ears of the older woman.

It was at this point that Alva Crosey showed himself in the doorway of the living room. His slung head and lank, stoop-shouldered figure had never been so welcome anywhere before. To Miss West, they took on beauties only commensurate with those of an angelic visitor from worlds unknown. She hurried herself upon him.

"Have you—seen anything of a big young man with curly hair and a rather striking pair of dark eyes?"

The managing editor's own eyes twinkled.

"I've seen just the young man you describe," he remembered the stable boy's threatening scowl—"and I will agree that his eyes, as you say, were of the—er—striking sort."

"Please try to believe me," said Miss West, clasping her hands earnestly, "he is a person worth saving. I haven't time to explain and the others don't understand. But will you help—you will, won't you?"

"Of course, of course, but I'll have to know what this man is to be saved from. Can you tell me?"

"A raid on Bride's House. The residents of Hales Crossing—they're on their way here now. He'll never let himself be arrested and the reward reads 'dead or alive.' Oh, shuddering, 'it will mean another murder.'"

"They'll have to catch him first!" He explained the circumstances which had led up to David's final exit from the scene. "Probably miles away from here by now, and still underground."

Annata seemed scarcely to credit the testimony of her ears. "You say he's gone into the tunnel—the tunnel in the red barn? Do you think he went of his own free will?"

The managing editor was not prepared to go quite that far but he said:

AN EMBARRASSED CLEAR SKIN AT 72

Fortunes in skin foods? Yes—yet nature's way of feeding the skin is via the blood, the only source of absorption into any body cell then only if the distance has been digested. If the blood be kept normally alkaline (non-acid) by eating alkaline foods, a clear skin is a sure pink and limpid as a babe's. At seventy-two, my skin's clear enough to cause embarrassing comment, yet until I was past fifty I had an unsightly bad skin—pimples and puffy colored. Alkaline Roman Meal, by alkalizing my blood and keeping my bowels emptied after each meal, has worked this magic. Regardless of sex, a colorful, clear skin is a social and economic asset—also a evidence of splendid health. Ext alkaline Roman Meal freely Summer and Winter, and fruits and salads plentifully, and you can luxuriate in a skin to be proud of. Contract Bidding

North 2♦ 5♦ Pass
East 2♦ 5♦ Pass

In the actual Contract bidding of the above deal, South opened with a pre-emptive bid of three Diamonds, which proved abortive as West passed. North was undecided what to do with this bid, that is, whether to bid four, or possibly five Diamonds or to pass.

His indecision due to the inference that South, in making a pre-emptive bid of three Diamonds, had bid the full strength of his hand, in which event there existed little or no probability of the combined hands making five Diamonds.

This is the great trouble with original pre-emptive bids in minor suits. They form no part of any logical system of partnership bidding.

The invariable inference to be drawn from a pre-emptive suit bid of three is that bidder holds a maximum of seven probable tricks, massed wholly or principally in the suit named, and an original pre-emptive four bid, eight probable tricks.

The object of a pre-emptive suit bid of three is, or should be, to show a probable game hand with but average support (three tricks) in hand of partner. For this reason original suit bids of three should be restricted to Major suits, as pre-emptive Minor suit bids of three do not show probability of game unless partner holds better than average support.

Thus, South with his holding, one that contained never stated, should have opened the bidding with either one Diamond or four Diamonds—the latter bid showing eight probable tricks, and hence, inviting a five bid by North if holding three supporting tricks.

Soundly, South, with his holding, should have opened the bidding with but one Diamond, as for all that South could know to the contrary there could well be game in the combined hands, 30 Trump or Hearts and not at Diamonds.

An original bid of either one or four Diamonds would have inevitably resulted in the partnership arriving at a game. If South opens with four Diamonds, North must bid the fifth. If South opens with one Diamond, North with two Diamonds will take out with two Clubs, whereas South must now bid four Diamonds to ask partner to go five if able.

As a matter of fact, it was just as well that South played the hand at but three Diamonds, as he not only bid the hand poorly, but played it poorly, making but four odd, losing three Heart tricks. This result was partially poor, as South could easily have made a Grand Slam, due to West's opening of the Queen of Clubs.

While neither a Grand or Small Slam is soundly playable, at either contract can be defeated with a Spade opening, still five odd should be made against any opening.

SALE POINTS OF THE BIDDING

Auction: South opens the bidding with one Diamond, West passing. North with but two Diamonds, even though one be the King, takes out with two Clubs. East passing. South bids two Diamonds, concluding the bidding.

Contract: South opens the bidding with one Diamond, West passing. North takes out with two Clubs. East passing. South bids four Diamonds, which North carries to five.

THE PLAY

West has a difficult hand to open. Ordinarily, but for North's Club bid, West would have opened the Queen of Clubs. Zimbaliste, therefore, the Club opening and also a trump opening, his choice must lie between the Ace of Hearts and a small Spade. Selecting the latter as a choice of two evils, he opens the Three of Spades.

The Dummy going down, South (Declarer) wins with the Ace of Clubs, and leads the Nine of Hearts. East covers with the Ten, South the Queen and West wins with the Ace. West now leads a small Spade, which South wins with the King. South's trumping more than one Heart, South wins the trump lead in his own hand and leads a second round of Hearts, trumping with the King of Diamonds in Dummy. He next leads a small spade from Dummy and trumps in his own hand and makes all but one of the remaining tricks, losing a second Heart trick in the end.

It may be noted that had West opened with a trump, South could have established his Clubs in Dummy, exhausted the outstanding trumps and entered Dummy with the Ace of Spades to make a good Clubs, making a Grand Slam on the hand, as would also be the final result had West opened the Queen of Clubs.

"You oughtn't to be here, sir," Crosey said. "We can handle this crowd—Terhune and myself. Let your man drive you, the woman-folk back to the Towers."

The millionaire laughed bitterly. "Get Miss West to leave with the prospect of a riot in the offing? You don't know what you're talking about. That girl isn't human. Her strength and determination would shame a dozen men." A look of exhaustion, almost one could have said, of resignation, crossed the handsome face. "She's worn me out, Crosey, beaten me at every turn."

"Then go alone. I can handle her."

Diamond shook his head. "The time has come when there is no avenue of escape for me. I will stay to the end."

With a bristling he was far from feeling Crosey opened the door to the fullest extent and stepped back. "Well, then, let's go. Diamond, where we can all be together." He held out his hand, but the man in the limousine shrank farther into his corner.

"Enter that house? Era Runnels' house? With every word his voice rose to a higher and higher pitch. "Never, never, until I am carried, will I cross the threshold."

The defiant cry had scarcely left his lips when there came a movement in the bushes just across the narrow road. The muzzle of an automatic noised through the leaves. A spurt of flame flashed the darkness.

With a cry, the millionaire put his hand to his side and fell forward on the floor of the car.

Scout News and Notices

DISTRICT ORDERS

The various Scout and Cub troops of the district are busy preparing for the big Scout rally at Government House on June 28. The following orders for that day have been issued by Acting Scoutmaster Richard Bishop.

All troops and packs will parade at 2 o'clock on June 28 at the Collegiate School grounds on Rockland Avenue. Scoutmasters and cubmasters will report to Scoutmaster Field upon arrival, and again when the troop and pack is complete. Scoutmaster Field will then dispatch each troop and pack at intervals to Government House, having first distributed final orders for the day to all officers. Careful attention must be given to these orders. Upon arrival at Government House (east gate), scoutmasters and cubmasters will call troop or pack to the halt and report to me. They will get their allotment and proceed thereto immediately to stand by till further orders are issued. At 3 o'clock three blasts of the whistle will be sounded, upon which, troops will fall in around flagstaff in horseshoe formation around markers designated by scoutmasters (one to each seven Scouts on parade), and packs will form circle inside horseshoe. Scoutmasters and cubmasters will fall in behind, with Cub officers to left of scoutmasters. Upon arrival of all officials, the parade will be called to the alert. Howl will be given (officers will call to full salute at the alert). Flag will remain at the alert. Flag will be broken (whole parade at salute), display declared open and the orders to break away will be given. Troops and packs will then proceed to their respective duties.

At 5:45 o'clock all Scouts and Cubs will cease activities and start upon clean-up of grounds. Inspection of grounds at 6:15 o'clock. Grounds will be spotless. At 6:30 o'clock, upon three blasts of the whistle, Scouts and Cubs will fall in as before; howl will be given and, flag down, followed by dismissal. Upon dismissal, scoutmasters and cubmasters will take their troops and packs to point named in final orders, and there disperse. No troop or pack will disperse near Government House. Scoutmasters and cubmasters are asked to divide their troops and packs into three groups, requesting each group to bring cake, candy and sandwiches, respectively. These will be handed in at the Collegiate grounds to Scouts appointed to collect them.

The acting district commissioner desires a particularly smart and Scout-like appearance and behavior on this parade. He will endeavor to visit all troops prior to this date to discuss any points of doubt here with them. Scoutmasters and cubmasters are asked to let him have, by 9 a.m. Saturday, June 28 at latest, the approximate number of Scouts and Cubs who will attend this parade. This is essential to space the horseshoe and circle.

CARIBOO CANDIDATE LAUNCHES CAMPAIGN

PRINCE GEORGE, June 24.—Mr. H. G. Perry opened his campaign as Liberal candidate for Cariboo in an enthusiastic meeting in the Prince Theatre last night. However, medical examination yesterday revealed that Webster had broken his right thumb. He will be out of the game for at least a month. It is a tough break for the doctor, who is a good ball player and who will be sadly missed by his Elks colleagues.

English Net St. Gives Borotra Terrific Battle

H. G. N. Lee Loses to French Ace After Grueling 5-Set Struggle—Helen Moody and Tilden Advance With Ease at Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, Eng., June 24.—Continuing through the English tennis championships the United States today landed seven of its ranking men players in the third round and advanced three of its women representatives to the second in the play at Wimbledon.

Without losing a set, Bill Tilden, George Lott, Johnny Doeg, Berkely Bell, Johnny Van Ryn, Wilmer Allison and Gregory Mangin easily brushed aside all opposition. The women invaders from across the Atlantic were not so fit. Mrs. Helen Wills Moody came through as expected along with the youthful Sarah Palfrey of Boston, Mary Greaf of Kansas City, and Elizabeth Ryan; but Miss Edith Cross, of San Francisco, fell before the devastating drives of Miss Joane Sigart, Belgium's No. 1 ranking player, 3-6, 6-3, 6-3.

Mrs. Moody's opponent, Pauline Hilda Krahwinkel, Germany's third ranking player, made a good showing, although after dropping the first game in each set Mrs. Moody won by 6-2, 6-1.

E. O. Mather, a Texas student at Oxford, gave Tilden nothing more than a brief practice session, Tilden winning 6-2, 6-2, 6-1.

Wilmor Allison and George Lott had the hardest battles of America's Davis Cup players before they eliminated English opposition. Allison disposed of S. W. Harris, 6-3, 8-6, 6-4, while Lott took the measure of the veteran Charles H. Kingsley, 6-3, 6-4, 6-4.

Berkely Bell, of Austin, Texas, went into the third round with a decisive victory over Roderick Menzel, first ranking Czechoslovakian player, 6-1, 6-2, 6-2. Johnny Doeg, the California southpaw, hoping somehow that you will be able to field it when it reaches you. Nine times out of ten it will arrive with a bad hop or half bounce and will be a difficult chance.

But when you "play the ball" it means rushing forward to meet it, and by anticipating and picking out a good hop or bounce you can make an easy play.

Of course, there are exceptions to this rule, as when a ball is hit so speedily that you have no opportunity to go forward to meet it. Then all you can do is try to knock it down and hope for the best.

However, it is absolutely sound advice to never back up on a ground ball when it is possible to go in and meet it. By doing this you are, master of the ball and not it of you.

Jokers, who have fallen into a slump and dropped to third place in the Senior Amateur Baseball League pennant race, will try to start their climb back to the top of the ladder tonight when they oppose the Eagles at the Royal Athletic Park at 8:15 o'clock.

Leo Holden has been assigned to the mound and dropped to third place in the Senior Amateur Baseball League pennant race, will try to start their climb back to the top of the ladder tonight when they oppose the Eagles at the Royal Athletic Park at 8:15 o'clock.

The tribe are still enjoying fond memories of their last defeat of the Jokers and have visions of repeating the feat tonight. Brounau, who turned back last year's champions in the previous encounter, is expected to go to the hill tonight.

However, it is absolutely sound advice to never back up on a ground ball when it is possible to go in and meet it. By doing this you are, master of the ball and not it of you.

CHANGES TO BE MADE IN ENGLISH TEST XI

Sutcliffe and Geary Will Be Unable to Play in Next Match

Two Strong Cricketers to Be Out of Second Test to Start Friday—Harold Larwood Will Be in Line-Up Again

LONDON, June 24.—The English team which will meet Australia in the second cricket test match at Lord's, beginning on Friday next, will be very different from the eleven which won the first test at Trent Bridge. Today the committee which selects the English side learned that Herbert Sutcliffe, Jack Hobbs' partner for the opening wicket, and George Geary, the bowler, could not play.

It was thought early today that Harold Larwood, one of England's fast bowlers, who was taken ill at Trent Bridge, would be out of it, but his doctor gave him a clean bill of health and the English selection committee promptly invited him to be at Lord's on the opening day. Andrew Sandham, Hobbs' opening partner for Surrey, has also been invited to hold himself in readiness to play. Sandham is one of the veterans of the game and has played against Australia, West Indies and South Africa.

He was very successful in the West Indies last winter. He and Hobbs have made a century and more for the first wicket on many occasions. In addition Sandham is one of the surest outfielders in England. The English team now consists of: Jack Hobbs, A. Sandham, Wally Hammond, Frank Woolley, Prince Duleep Singh, Pat Hendren, A. P. F. Chapman (captain), Maurice Tate, Dick Tydesley, George Duckworth, Harold Larwood and R. W. V. Robson. The exact eleven will be announced probably on the day of play.

The Australians are themselves giving a lot of careful consideration to their team. They would like to bolster the strength of their tail but are at a loss how it can be improved from a batting point of view and not weaken as an attacking force. It is possible that A. Jackson or E. Beckett may be tried out. The former is a fine bat and the latter is both a good bat and useful pinch bowler.

Cunningham Goes Under Before Don Campbell

Kingston Street Champ Eliminated in Victoria Tennis Club's Championship Singles After Great Match—Today's Draw

One of the favorites for the men's open championship singles of the Victoria Lawn Tennis Club dropped out of the picture last night, when Don Campbell defeated Gerald Cunningham, 6-1, 4-6, 6-2, in the semi-final round which was completed last night. Cunningham, who recently won the Kingston Street title, was figured by many to be one of the finalists. D. M. Gordon, defending champion, Commander Edwards and Ross Hocking are the other semi-finalists.

Don Campbell gave a brilliant display in putting Cunningham down. He won the opening set easily at 6-1, but Cunningham played strongly to win the second set, 6-4. Campbell took the third and final set, 6-2, although the score hardly indicates the closeness of the games. Nine more matches were written off, all with the exception of the Campbell-Cunningham match, being handicap events.

POLICE TRACK TEAM LEAVES FOR MAINLAND

Constables Phipps, Bone, Claydys, Dunnell and Mugford to Compete in Vancouver Sports

LOCALS ARE IN GOOD CONDITION

Constables Arthur Phipps, George Claydys and Robert Mugford, and Motorcycle Constables Douglas Bone and Steve Dunnell, members of the track team of the Victoria Police Department, left last night en route for Vancouver, where they will compete in the annual police sports meet today. Accompanying the sprinters is Constable James Peterson, coach.

Following a hard training session here the locals are in good shape, and look forward to a successful invasion of the Mainland track. Last year Motorcycle Constable Bone showed his heels to a fast field and gained for himself the moniker of the "Flying Cop." This year Bone hopes to repeat, but he will find plenty of stiff opposition from his own colleagues.

OLD-TIMERS SHOW WESTHOLMES HOW

Veteran League Ball Tossers Defeated Colanet Representatives by 14-12 Score

Playing bang up ball behind the stellar pitching of Bill Norris, Colanet Old-Timers took a hard fought game from the Westholmes league by the score of 14-12. The game was played in fast time and both sides gave their chukkers good support. The Westholmes took the lead in the first inning, but were never in front after that.

Bill Spencer turned out a fine bunch of old-timers, and their playing was a treat to watch. The old-timers worked hard behind the bat, and only a few bases were stolen. Carr, pitcher for the city team, was inclined to be wild and walked ten men.

Wally Yeomans, of the Old-Timers, showed how to hit homers when he slammed a liner over the first baseman's head and took him time all the way home. Andy Vetch got four hits out of five times at bat for the Old-Timers. Joe Delahunty pulled off three running catches in centre field, stopping several rallies of the Westholmes.

Wood, Borde and Dunnell played good ball for the losers.

The teams were: Colanet Old-Timers—Spencer, c; Norris, p; Buckle, 1b; Milne, 2b; Yeomans, 3b; Pickup, 3b; Vetch, rf; Delahunty, cf; Shoudice, lf.

Colanet—Westholmes Leaguers—Dunnell, c; Carr, p; Borde, 2b; McCannell, cf; Woods, 3b; Smith, rf; Yorsion, lf; Coates, lf; Macmurchie, ss.

THE BUNKING GOES ON
When you read the news from Hoylake last week as Jones won another championship, there was no mention of the word "foul" anywhere along the line.

But, if you go to see a fight or read about a fight, it is almost a certainty that you will bump into the same sordid, morbid story once more wherein the show broke up with another belt in foul territory.

It has come to the point now where the public knows pretty well that a foul is going to break up the show so they can't be a lot of sympathy for those who insist on getting trimmed, week after week, for so much per trimming.

But, if any fight fan goes to see an "ouch check" rule is passed, or some other measure equally effective that will guarantee a performance, it is only a matter of brief time before either state legislatures, or the public on its own hook, will close out the modern fight as the fight game.

If any fight fan goes to see an other so-called contest without the guarantee of a foul check or a return match, minus any further pay, in the case of foul, he should have his head examined.

Of course, he likes to take it on the chin far more than any fighters now around like to take the count. The crowd at least should know what it is going to get. If it likes fouls for its money there is no squawk coming. If it doesn't care so much for fouls there is no legislation on the books forcing anyone to pay money in order to see one fighter nail another below the belt and look on as the other starts writhing and rolling along the floor.

ABOUT CARNERA
How good is Schmeling? How good is Sharkey? How good is Carnera? No one actually knows as the boys can hardly restrain themselves before a foul rap is planted and the party is turned into a guess.

Who can tell how good a 100-yard man is at fifty yards—or forty yards? There has been no contest lately to prove anything except the public's amazing love of punishment.

But, as far as the Carnera-Godfrey show went Monday night, the big Italian looks to have too much physical stuff for any fighter now around. George Godfrey, weighing 250 pounds, hit him with everything he could throw and most of his punches landed solidly. Yet Carnera was looking better at the start of the fifth round than he looked in the first. If the punches that Godfrey planted failed to shake him up, how could a Sharkey, a Schmeling or any other man under 200 pounds keep the man mountain away long enough to last?

The answer is: they probably could not.

When you take an entry weighing 260 pounds who can step around faster than most of the 200 pounders, and who, in addition, can take it and hand it out, you have a fellow who is pretty sure to be champion of the world before so very long, provided he gets the chance.

Carnera is still crude, but he is only twenty-three and he has every physical qualification to overpower any of us now around. As Law-son Robertson, the Olympic track and field coach from Pennsylvania, pointed out, "He is the only giant I ever saw who is perfectly proportioned." And he is the fastest big man I ever saw, when it comes to bigness above 200 pounds."

It is hardly possible that Max Schmeling, now the heavyweight champion, could last six rounds against him. Certainly not ten. Schmeling couldn't hurt him, and he could hurt Schmeling plenty. And if he didn't Schmeling or some other 185 or 190-pound opponent would drop from exhaustion before ten rounds.

He was able to move and shove Godfrey around with his hands, and Godfrey at 250 is no pushover.

But as the next contest will probably

INDEPENDENCE TO OPEN NEXT MONTH

Development of Bear River Property Expected Soon to Be in Full Swing Again

Development of the Independence mine, on the west side of Bear River opposite Mosquito Creek, which was discontinued during the winter months, is expected to be in full swing again by next month, with Mr. R. M. Fitzgerald in charge.

It is proposed to continue No. 2 tunnel 1,000 feet to come under the diamond drill holes, which cut the entire vein system, and then drift north and south. This will practically cut the entire vein system, part of which was proven by diamond drilling. A three-drill compressor will supply the air. Plans are being made to continue the vein system, which will give 1,000 feet depth.

Controlling interest of Independence is held by Revenue Control Mines, Limited, of Vancouver.

TIDEWATER CUTS ANOTHER VEIN

Molybdenum Property of Dalhousie Mining Company Continues to Meet Good Fortune

Dalhousie Mining Company, Ltd., continues to meet with good fortune in the development of the Tidewater molybdenum property on Alice Arm.

A telegram, just received from Superintendent McLeod, by the directors here, reports that another substantial vein of good ore had been cut. The crosscut was into the ore over two feet and the hanging wall had not been broken. Samples of the ore are being forwarded and results are awaited with interest.

Development to date indicates that the substantial body of ore met with in the upper workings will be encountered in place at depth and that they may prove to be even better at depth. A very pleasing feature of the development is that, owing to the dip of the veins being steeper than was calculated, the first ore bodies have been cut much sooner than was expected and the company is now well ahead of its schedule.

The property is high grade and the various veins showing on the surface, and in the upper workings, indicate a large tonnage. This proves definitely that the indications on the surface, substantiated by the upper workings, are confirmed to depth.

INDEPENDENCE TO OPEN NEXT MONTH

Development of Bear River Property Expected Soon to Be in Full Swing Again

Development of the Independence mine, on the west side of Bear River opposite Mosquito Creek, which was discontinued during the winter months, is expected to be in full swing again by next month, with Mr. R. M. Fitzgerald in charge.

It is proposed to continue No. 2 tunnel 1,000 feet to come under the diamond drill holes, which cut the entire vein system, and then drift north and south. This will practically cut the entire vein system, part of which was proven by diamond drilling. A three-drill compressor will supply the air. Plans are being made to continue the vein system, which will give 1,000 feet depth.

Controlling interest of Independence is held by Revenue Control Mines, Limited, of Vancouver.

JUST LIKE A WOMAN

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Two men who had been investigating prohibition in various places returned to an apartment, early the other morning, still in an inquisitive state of mind. Among other things, they discussed what would happen if an egg were to be thrown into a rapidly moving electric fan. There was such a fan in the apartment, so they decided to experiment in the interest of science. The host secured two eggs from the refrigerator and each man was allowed one shot. Their control was perfect. The net result helped relieve the labor situation. It gave employment to a tailor, a dry cleaner, a rug renovator, a paperhanger and a decorator, to say nothing of the man who recovered the seat of the antique chair.

VICTORIA CITY APPEAL UPHELD

B.C.F.A. in Session Here
Orders Replay of Jackson Cup Final Between Jokers and City

L.I.F.A. IS CENSURED BY PROVINCIAL BODY

The British Columbia Football Association, in session here over the week-end, upheld the appeal of the Victoria City Football Club against the decision handed out by the Lower Island Football Association regarding the Jackson Cup protest lodged against the Jokers. Victoria City filed this complaint again playing Nelson, a junior, and a member of the James Island Football Club. The L.I.F.A. threw the protest out on the grounds that the player in question was a senior.

Not satisfied with the ruling of the soccer moguls, the City club took the matter to the Provincial body who, in session here on Sunday, upheld the appeal. The B.C.F.A. passed a motion censuring L.I.F.A. for not reopening the case when additional evidence was produced, and ordered a replay of the Jackson Cup final, with the proceeds going to charity. Mayor Anscomb is to name what charitable institution the gate receipts shall go to.

FOUR-DAY GOLF MEET TO BE HELD AT QUALICUM BEACH

Prizes of unusual value will be offered, the first in the men's competition being ten dozen golf balls.

Power Boats Finish Race to Prince Rupert

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C., June 24.—Twelve motor craft, competing in the Seattle to Prince Rupert international cruiser race, finished here today between 11:25 a.m. and 5 p.m., the Maile, of the Queen City Yacht Club, Seattle entry, being the first to arrive.

Joseph L. Patton, judge, and his assistants, Arthur H. Carson and John Dybhaven, began early tonight to study the logs and records of the various craft, and hoped to be able to announce tomorrow the official winner and standings of the other competitors, since the race was a handicap affair, based on engine speeds, it was not possible tonight to make an official announcement of the winners, Patton said.

Open Rebellion Starts Against Landis Rule

CHICAGO, June 24.—The first open rebellion against the arbitrary authority of Kenesaw Mountain Landis, baseball commissioner, broke out today when the Milwaukee club of the American Association brought suit in the Federal Court to stop the transfer of one of its players to the St. Louis Browns of the American League.

Wildcat Carter Loses Decision To Don Fraser

SPOKANE, Wash., June 24.—Don Fraser, Spokane welterweight, hammered Leslie "Wildcat" Carter, Seattle, lustily throughout their six-round battle tonight and finished in a whirlwind of strength to win the decision.

PRINCE RUPERT, June 24.—Jumbo Davies, flashy Victoria boy, knocked out Frankie Neal, formerly of Victoria, and now residing here, in the eighth round of their scheduled ten-round main event here tonight. The show was part of the entertainment arranged in conjunction with the big power-boat race from Seattle to Prince Rupert. Davies showed a lot of class and had his opponent in distress several times before the knockout punch was landed.

NO EXCUSE

The Court was silent; the magistrate had ordered the ushers to call the first prisoner.
A man was put into the dock.
"You are accused of stealing a chicken," said the magistrate solemnly. "Have you anything to say?"
"Yes, Your Worship," said the prisoner, "I took it for a lark."
"A lark!" snapped the magistrate. "No resemblance whatsoever—ten days."

Even Women's Sewing Circles Soon Will Be Holding Golf Championships

No Organization in U.S. Functions Completely Now if It Does Not Stage Tournaments

Golf has become more of a passion in this country than in Scotland, the land of its birth.

Some statisticians have figured out that 4,000,000 American men, women and children play golf—or play at it. However, this figure only partly indicates the grip the pastime has taken upon our imaginations.

We are rapidly reaching a point where there can be no sort of organization, social, professional, fraternal, business or otherwise, which does not have a golf department and stage a golf championship. It used to be that we had only national, sectional and state championships. To these we later added district and city championships. But now there is scarcely any city of size that does not have its Rotary championship, its Kiwanis championship, its lumbermen's championship, its medical men's championship, its business men's championship, its lawyers' championship, and so on and on.

Another ten years is likely to witness the ladies' sewing circle holding its weekly meeting on the golf links. And the women are going in for golf and the time is not far distant when a matron who can't break 110 won't be admitted to the mothers' club.

A glance through the newspapers of some thirty-five large American cities reveals that among recent golf events staged was the Seattle, Wash., Retall Merchants' Derby, the championship of the Lumbermen's Club of Memphis, Tenn., and Helena, Ark., the annual tournament of the International Golf League of Government Clerks at Washington, D.C.; weekly matches of the Akron, O., Bankers' Golf League; the Seattle's tournament at Seattle, Wash., and the auto dealers' tournament at the same place; regular matches in the industrial league from Dayton, Ohio, weekly play in the Junior Chamber of Commerce Intercity Golf League at Atlanta, Ga., and other events, dozens of sorts too numerous to mention.

And don't think it is unnecessary to play good golf to win these events. T. E. Sledge won the championship of the Lumbermen of Memphis, Tenn., and Helena, Ark., only by shooting a nifty 78.

In opening the new eighteen-hole Penn Golf Club course, of the officers, directors and employees of the Pennsylvania Railroad, near Fraser Station on the Lincoln Highway, not far from Philadelphia, V. B. Stanberry and E. J. Watts tied for low score with 83, while P. B. Vandergrift was right at their heels with 84 and J. J. Sheehan and R. S. Ebert followed with 85.

Girls of ages ranging from seventeen to seventy are in competition. Down in Oklahoma a seventy-one-year-old grandmother recently copped off a cup.

The ladies are dangerous with mauls and niblicks. At Cleveland enforcement forces both in Canada and the United States was emphasized by Mr. Luke S. May, of Seattle, president of the association, in his presidential address. He also contended that police officers were not paid proportionately to the service they rendered the community.

He said the public must be made thoroughly aware of the rising tide of lawlessness, and pointed out it was incumbent on officers of the law to bring these problems before the citizens at large.

Mr. Joseph Hammerley, deputy district attorney of Portland, referred to the splendid co-operation which, he said, existed between the officers of law enforcement on both sides of the border. He paid high tribute to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, characterizing them as the most efficient law-enforcing agency that ever existed.

RESPONSIBILITY TO STATE
Chief Louis J. Forbes, of Seattle, said a great step towards solution of the crime problem would be in educating the juvenile to his responsibility to the state.

Deputy Police Magistrate Paul McD. Kerr, of Vancouver, speaking of police carrying out the law, related various cases in Canada where officers mortally wounded fleeing culprits, and the results of their trials where action had been brought against city or government.

He favored officers carrying guns providing they are properly trained. "There has never been a successful prosecution at the criminal bar in Canada," the deputy magistrate said, "or a successful suit for damages where an officer has been charged with homicide."

A Creole gentleman once settled an affair that concerned his honor as a husband in a manner combining the advantages of a duel and of damages.

The culprit, a wealthy banker, was his intimate friend. The Creole sent his wife to her mother for a day or two and the "friend" to dinner. The latter came. He was asked to refuse.

A servant placed a large covered dish on the table and retired. The host removed the cover and displayed to the terrified banker—two pistols and an unsigned cheque for 100,000 dollars, saying, "I know all—take your choice."

The cheque was signed, and the next day the lady was sent to Europe with the 100,000 dollars. She never saw her husband again.

Bramble: "Yes, I'm ugly. I know I'm ugly, but there is one great consolation."

Friend: "What is that?"
Bramble: "If ever I should become great, and the people should resolve to erect a statue to my memory, they won't be able to make me out any uglier than I am."

LAUGHTER

What a gorgeous thing is laughter! It takes a little doing when the skies are grey—when nothing is right, nothing seems as if it will ever be right again.

Then is the time to be gay—to let the world ring with our laughter. Sometimes, in the depths of the pit of our despair, we would give a fortune for the ability to laugh. How often, in some public place, we hear, suddenly, a laugh that sets the nerves of our mind tingling with admiration, envy, desire. Oh, if we could do that! To some it is automatic; to others it is impossible. And yet, so shrewd and far-seeing and wonderful is this amazing mind of ours that if we but presume and practice the art of laughter, it will become automatic.

To laugh when the waves of affairs almost drown us is to turn a gloomy world into a world of sunlight.

Only, don't laugh in the wrong place. That's as bad as never laughing. The time to laugh, the most precious time to laugh, is when the weather is cold, when friends seem to be too busy to take notice—when we are alone.

Then let's laugh loud and long. We shall be astonished how well the welkin will laugh too.—Tit Bits.

Jones called upon his friend Smith, and found him sitting in his shed with the much-mended inner tube of his bicycle wheel over his knee.

"Puncture?" he asked sympathetically. The other shook his head.

"Then why are you covering the tube with all those patches?" inquired Jones wonderingly.

"Well, you see," explained Smith, "when I do get a puncture it'll be already mended."

Convention Will Unveil Statue of Friend of Youth

Vast Assemblages in Toronto Will Focus Mind Upon Religious Training of Youth — Dark Background of India's Ills Lighted by Service of Christian Medical Men

India's Viceroy Praises Efforts of Missionaries

THE dramatic moment at the great international gathering of the friends of youth that will be held in Toronto, June 23-29, will be two weeks this afternoon, when, in the presence of a vast company assembled in Queen's Park, near the University of Toronto, the bronze statue of that pioneer friend of youth, Robert Raikes, Gloucester, will be unveiled.

In that act will be vividly visualized the contrast between the work the benevolent English journalist began and the magnitude to which it has expanded, as the spectators recall the little group of ragamuffins coaxed off the slum streets of Gloucester with the 25,000,000 or more who every week through the Sunday schools of the world. Fifty years ago the children of England put up his statue in Victoria Gardens, on the Thames Embankment, of which the Toronto figure is an exact replica, as also is another that will be raised this Autumn in the city where he began his good work just a century and one-half ago.

AN IMMENSE MOVEMENT

The immensity of the modern movement of the religious education of youth is suggested by the required huge meeting place, the buildings of the National Exhibition. A more vital matter is the wealth of pedagogic skill that is joined with religious fervor in framing the best possible courses for the Christian upbringing of the Church's youth. The vast variety of exhibits will demonstrate this. Skilled leaders will give of their best in study groups and public assemblages. The four corners of the world will be represented: Sir Harold Mackintosh, Rev. Carey Bonner and Canon Raven, of England; Dr. T. Z. Koo, the national Y.M.C.A. secretary for China; speakers from Brazil, Mexico and the Philippines; and experts like Dr. George A. Coe of the United States. During the week the Christian programme for the youth of the continent for the next four years will be drafted by 250 members of the Christian Youth Conference of 2,000 picked young people and their leaders. At both of these Victoria will be represented by Rev. F. A. Ramsey and Bruce G. Gray.

ANSWER TO YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE

CONVICTION IN FORGERY CASE

Harry Clough Is Remanded for Sentence After Retrial in Assize Court

Harry Clough, twenty, was convicted at his retrial, yesterday, before Mr. Justice Gregory and an Assize Court jury, on a charge of knowingly making use of a forged cheque. The accused was remanded for sentence until the close of the special Assize.

The trial opened yesterday morning, after a disagreement of the jury at an original trial held last week. Clough pleaded not guilty to an allegation of cashing a worthless cheque for $21 odd at a grocery store on May 31 last. Chief witness against the accused was John Landchick, nineteen, who, availing himself of the protection of the Canada Evidence Act, freely admitted making out the spurious cheque, but asserted he did it at the dictation of the accused.

The cheque was cashed by the accused, and the money used for the payment of car hire at a "drive-yourself" garage, the court was further told by Landchick. An unsuccessful attempt to cash the cheque at a Chinese restaurant on Johnson Street was defeated by Chow Chen, proprietor of the place. Clough and Landchick had ordered a meal at the restaurant, and Clough tendered the cheque in payment, said this witness.

Mr. Arthur Brookman, proprietor of the grocery store at Craigflower Road and the Island Highway, told of cashing the cheque at the request of the accused, who had also received one gallon of gasoline for a motorcycle.

Mr. E. V. Thompson testified that he was not the "W. Thompson" whose name had been written on the document, and that no cheque in this sum had been made out by his firm, the Victoria Wood & Coal Company.

After a brief recital of the evidence, similar to that given at the former trial, Mr. A. M. Johnson, K.C., closed the case for the Crown.

Clough took the witness stand in his own defence, denying that he had instigated the writing of the cheque, and blaming Landchick for the accused's connection with the forged document in any way. The name "Frank Smith," endorsed on the cheque had been written at the suggestion of Landchick, continued the accused, swearing that the former had arrived at his apartment with the cheque already made out. It was a "bearer" cheque, and he knew of no harm in making use of it, he concluded.

Mr. R. D. Harvey, counsel for the accused, in his address to the jury, stressed the relation in the evidence of the witness Landchick to that of the accused, and submitted that the uncorroborated testimony of an accomplice should not be taken as final.

The jury retired at 3:50 p.m. and returned at 4:02 p.m. with a verdict of "guilty." Harry Clough was remanded for sentence.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK MCCOY

STUDYING DIET IS PROFITABLE

A study of the relation of diet to health must have begun well over two thousand years ago, for Hypocrites declared that food was the best medicine the physician had at his disposal. Since that time there have been probably several thousand dietetic theories advocated by as many earnest investigators. Most of the older theories have been discarded, as many of the greatest discoveries in food science have been made in the last quarter of a century. However, from the mass of experimentation, we have today evolved a science of dietetics and dietotherapy that is very close to an exact science.

It is only within recent years that scientists have had the instruments and the techniques for discovering the exact effect of the different food elements upon the body, but they have made good use of the time, and have learned much about the analysis of foods and their effect on living bodies. It should be remembered that the scientists do not make the dietetic laws; they simply discover them, and even an unbeliever in diet must, to some extent, obey these fixed laws or be punished by sickness or death.

regime to suit the needs of the body in its highly involved state.

There is no need to take food haphazardly, without regard to quantity, quality or combination. There is no need to starve for certain food elements in the midst of plenty, as so many do. There are millions of people who are eating three square meals a day and yet are literally starving for some particular food element, usually vitamins and minerals. There are millions who are poisoning themselves with an excess of some particular food or with wrong mixtures of food. All of these conditions are unnecessary if people would only spend a little time in studying some of the more elementary food lessons.

You can readily see how the little dietetic errors at each meal will have a cumulative effect which will tend to greatly shorten your life and usefulness. In spite of wrong eating habits of a lifetime, do not hesitate to change your bad eating habits to good ones. When your body has had a chance to free itself of the burden of continual food battles, it will have a better chance to cleanse itself of the result of many dietetic indiscretions and you will be surprised and delighted at the immediate change for the better.

You do not have to be a scientist to know how to eat correctly.

Simply mix a little common sense and some of the fundamental facts about food and you will know how to choose your meals for the greatest advantage of your health, and once you have formed the habit of eating correctly, it will become instinctive so that you will not care to eat otherwise. It is certainly a profitable investment if you can spend a few hours in studying food science and by doing so add many years to your life.

SAN RAFAEL, June 23.—Deputy Sheriff Richard E. Keating left here tonight for Vancouver, B.C., to extradite Donald Albright, twenty-three, wanted in Marin County, for "motorized cattle thievery." Albright is accused of stealing a herd of cows from a ranch and carrying them off in a motor truck.

AUSTRALIAN WHEAT CROP ENCOURAGING

SYDNEY, Australia, June 24.—The Commonwealth statistician estimates the area under wheat cultivation in Australia exceeds 17,000,000 acres. Weather for the opening of the season has been favorable and there are some expectations of a record yield. In 1927-28, the latest year for which official figures are available, Australia devoted 12,279,088 acres to wheat.
